

HOME BUILDERS' CASE REVERSED

U.S. OPENS NEW SUIT AGAINST HARVESTER CO.

Seeks Division of International Harvester Company Into 3 Corporations

NQ COMPETITION, CHARGE

Action Is Started in District Court at St. Paul by Attorney-General

St. Paul, July 18.—The United States government, through Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, yesterday filed a petition in federal district court here seeking division of the International Harvester Company into three separate corporations.

The government alleges that the dissolution decree entered against the company in 1918 did not restore competition in the farm industry and that the company still is a monopoly and that the number of competitive concerns is shrinking steadily.

The dissolution petition was presented by a special representative of the Attorney-General's office in Washington, which will handle the case for the government. Federal court is not in session here now and the petition was locked up in a safe until the return of Federal Judge J. F. McGee and United States District Attorney Lafayette Freney Jr. from Duluth.

Make Reply
The filing of the petition brought about a speedy reply from Alexander Legge of Chicago, president of the company. Mr. Legge's statement contended that the company was acquitted of wrongful acts and unfair competition in 1918.

He said that the petition charges the company with lowering prices to the detriment of competitors, not with raising them to the injury of the farmer.

He argues on the petition, he said, will show that farm machinery prices are the result of sharp competition in the industry.

Still Combated
The government will seek a new decree holding that the Harvester company "still is a combination in restraint of interstate trade and commerce."

Farmers of the company will suffer "if the company's monopolistic control of farm machinery is allowed to continue," the petition recites. The 1918 decree, according to Mr. Daugherty, has proved inadequate to break up the alleged restraint of trade and production of farm machinery.

The complaint mentions the following companies as being in combination to restrain trade:

The International Harvester Co. of America, the International Farm Twin Co., the Wisconsin Steel Co., the Wisconsin Lumber Co., the Illinois Northern Railway and the Chicago, West Pullman and Southern railway companies and the officers and directors of all of these.

INCORPORATIONS
Articles of incorporation filed with the Secretary of State:

The "Eagle Elevator Company, Fargo; Cass county; capital stock $25,000; incorporators, John Brandt, Joe Still, W. H. Dennis, E. C. Martin, E. D. Wallace, J. C. Miller, Ed. Bumgardner."

Page Lumber Co., Fargo, Cass county; capital stock $25,000; incorporators, W. H. Dennis, H. Erickson, John Brandt, Ed. Wallace, E. C. Morton, Sig Bjeken.

Expansion Elevator Company, Expansion; Mercer county; capital stock $5,000; incorporators, H. W. Bohrer, Mannheim, B. H. Hildebrand, Jacob Schwab, Ferdinand Rahn, Fred Adolph Sr., all of Krem.

WARD TO ISSUE $250,000 BONDS FOR CASH BASIS
Minot, N. D., July 18.—County Auditor R. W. Kennard has signed $250,000 worth of bonds, which Ward county has floated for placing it on a cash basis as required under laws enacted by the last legislature, and also to care for claims of school districts and other political subdivisions for delinquent tax penalties and interest, collected by the county.

The bonds were purchased several weeks ago by the Second National, Union National and Scandinavian American banks of Minot. They bear 5 1/2 per cent interest and mature in 1943.

Subdivision claims total approximately $142,000, it is said.

BRIDGE ASSURED
New England, N. D., July 18.—Four miles of highway, including Main St. here and a large concrete permanent bridge over the Cannon Ball river, here will be built this summer through federal aid, it was announced following a meeting of state highway commission representatives and local county and city commissioners.

The bridge over the Cannon Ball will cost more than the city or county could raise to put into it and it is possible only through federal aid, it was said. The plans were approved for immediate call for bids and contract award.

HARVESTER IN ANSWER TO NEW PROSECUTION

Now Charged with Lowering Prices Too Greatly, Company Head Declares

The Harvester company's attitude in regard to the petition just filed against it by the government in the United States district court at St. Paul, Minn., is set forth in a statement by Alexander Legge, president of the company, which has been received by P. F. Fields, branch manager of the International Harvester Company of America in Bismarck. Mr. Legge's statement says:

"This petition is a continuation of the suit brought against us eleven years ago. Upon the hearing of that case held more than nine years ago, the Harvester company was acquitted, both by the findings of the court and by the attorney general's admission of any wrongful dealing or unfair practices toward customers or competitors, but to insure the fullest competition, a decree was entered in 1918 requiring the company to sell to competitors certain complete lines of harvesting machinery, and to limit its sales representation to a single dealer in any one town."

"That decree further provided that at the end of a test period which has now expired the government might ask the court to determine whether or not the free competition contemplated by the Sherman law exists in the farm implement industry. This step the government has now taken."

"As we understand it, the sole issue raised by the present petition relates to competitive conditions with respect to harvesting machines only. It does not charge the company with unduly raising the price of harvesting machinery to the grave injury of the American farmer, as was charged in 1912, but it does charge that the company has been unduly depressing the price of harvesting machinery, particularly since 1920, to the injury of its competitors."

"During the last few years the whole farm implement industry has been in an abnormal and distressing situation which directly reflects the situation of the farmer. High costs of labor, material and transportation have burdened it with high manufacturing costs, while on the other hand have left the farmer unable to buy his normal and needed requirements of farming machinery."

"We are confident that the hearing on the present petition will clearly show the Harvester company is not in any way responsible for these conditions in the farm implement industry. Prices of harvesting machinery are the result of vigorous competition, exactly the kind of competition which the Sherman law was enacted to preserve, and are fair competitors with the prices of other implements which the government concedes were fixed by normal competition."

Western N. D. Lawyers Named

Three western North Dakota lawyers are among those honored by vote of members of the state bar association, their names to be placed before the Governor for selection of members of the state board of bar examiners. The attorneys, in order of their standing, are: Charles J. Fisk, Minot, present member of board; Aubrey Lawrence, Fargo; George A. Bangs, Grand Forks; C. L. Young, Bismarck; John Knauff, Bismarck; J. M. Hanley, Mandan; Charles E. Wolfe, Wahpeton; W. F. Burnett, Dickinson; S. D. Adams, Lisbon.

DEATH CLAIMS PIONEER AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Mrs. Sarah V. Lowe Woodmansee Succumbs This Afternoon to Strain of Nervous Breakdown

IN STATE MANY YEARS

Mrs. Sarah V. Lowe Woodmansee, pioneer settler in the state and resident of Bismarck for the past twenty-two years died this afternoon at 1:20 o'clock at the family residence on 423 Fifth street after an illness of but five weeks resulting from a nervous breakdown and complications. She was 69 years of age.

During her years of residence in Bismarck Mrs. Woodmansee had many friends. She was an active member of the Methodist church and took a leading part in all its activities during her many years residence here. For twenty years before coming to Bismarck Mr. and Mrs. Woodmansee resided in Steele, where they took an active part in the building of the community life in that vicinity in the early days when the frontier life developed the character of its individuals.

Mrs. Woodmansee was born at Urbana, Ohio, Dec. 3, 1854, and was married to T. J. Woodmansee of St. Clairsville, Ohio, Dec. 24, 1874. They migrated to North Dakota about a month later. The deceased is survived by her husband, Mr. Woodmansee, who is ten years older than his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Robert Murray of Edmonston, Can. who was called to the bedside of her mother several weeks ago and a son, Harry J. Woodmansee Stationary store of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Woodmansee looked back a year of celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

While arrangements have not been definitely completed it is thought that funeral services will be held from the Methodist church Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. S. F. Halford officiating. Interment will take place in the Fairview cemetery.

JOHNSON TO HAVE 80,000 PLURALITY

Speculation Is Rife as to Next Senatorial Election in 1925

St. Paul, July 18.—Reports from 2,996 precincts out of 3,520 in the state give Johnson 268,545; Preus 186,786, and Carley 18,245, a lead of 79,459 for Johnson over Preus.

St. Paul, July 18.—With the United States Senatorial situation settled now until the 1924 fall election interest of political observers were turning today to probable developments when the 6-year senator term is up for consideration.

Magnus Johnson, Farmer-Laborite chosen in Monday's election by a plurality of more than 80,000, will serve under that mandate through the unexpired term of the late Senator Nelson, which ends in March, 1925. His friends declared it "a natural conclusion" to assume that he will seek the six-year term and the usual speculation began cropping out today as to his likely opponent in the Republican ranks.

Governor J. A. O. Preus, Republican, who met his first political defeat at the hands of Johnson Monday, continued silent today, saying he had no intention of leaving a statement at this time. His term as Governor expires January 1, 1925.

Senator-elect Johnson was back home on his farm at Kimball, Minn., yesterday ready "to pitch in" and help get the harvesting out of the way before he formulates his program for action in Washington.

LADIES AND ALUMNI HELP
Wilton July 18.—The Wilton Ladies Aid made a donation of $23.80 to be used on the local school. Large new foot scrapers and coals mats have been ordered to keep some of the mud out during wet weather and the balance will be used for books for the high school library.

The class of 1922 voted to turn over their balance of $26.00 to the H. S. library fund. This will be a big boost to the library. Through entertainment funds, etc., two hundred books were added to the grade library, giving each room twenty-five new books.

WARD DANCES HELD ORDERLY
Minot, N. D., July 18.—Rural dances in Ward county are being conducted in an orderly manner, declare deputy sheriffs. In a very few instances there have been slight disorders in the dance halls but the offenders are generally removed and the dance proceeds.

Judge Coffey Here
District Judge J. A. Coffey of Jamestown was here today to take up matters at the courthouse.

GENERAL WOOD ASSAILED IN PHILIPPINES

Entire Cabinet and Council Resigns in Protest Over Governor's Actions

TEAM INTERFERENCE

Charge That He Desired to Interfere in All of the Smallest Details

Manila, P. I., July 18.—The Philippine Islands and the city of Manila were virtually without native participation in the higher departments of their government today as a result of the resignation yesterday of four cabinet ministers, the president, of the senate and speaker of the house of representatives. The secretary of interior and mayor of Manila had previously resigned.

Insular administrative affairs were wholly in the hands of Governor-General Leonard Wood and his American appointive assistants. He and his American aides must assume the whole burden of government until successors can be found for the resigned officials.

So far Governor Wood has not met officially indicated how he will meet the situation.

Yesterday's resignations followed all night and all-day sessions of members of the various Philippine groups, of the council of state and of the legislative council at the governor-general's official residence.

Led by Manuel Quezon, president of the senate, the officials marched into the office of the Governor-General and tendered their resignations in connection with which they read a statement giving their reasons. The officials said they resigned jointly as the council of state and individually as department heads.

The reasons for the resignations given were objections to what the officials characterized as the Governor-General's policy of wishing to interfere and control even to smallest details "our government, both insular and local, in utter disregard of the responsibility of department heads and others concerned."

J. A. Cull of Fargo Quickly Revived—Temperature Is Soaring

J. A. Cull of Fargo, of Bismarck and Company, was overcome by the heat while at the state capitol today conversing with Governor Nestos, but was quickly revived.

Another case of a visitor in the city being overcome by the heat was reported late yesterday. A man fell on the sidewalk on Main street, but after receiving aid from bystanders, went about his business without giving his name.

The thermometer was starting toward a season's record this afternoon. It was 92 at 2 p. m., while the season's high mark is 94.5.

The heat wave is general over the Northwest. Some relief is in sight, according to the weather bureau, which predicts somewhat cooler weather tonight.

Temperatures have fallen in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and there is a high pressure area over Seattle which may come this way.

The coldest place in the United States this morning, according to the weather bureau, was Winnemucca, in the deserts of Nevada. The lowest there was 40 degrees above zero.

PHONE DAMAGE IS TOO GREAT

Case Must be Tried Over Again, Court Rules

Minneapolis, July 18.—The only case in history in which a subscriber was awarded damages from a telephone company for poor service must be tried over again, according to a decision of District Judge Dickinson, filed today.

Judge Dickinson declares the verdict for $1,000, awarded George S. Grimes, Minneapolis attorney, against the Northwestern Bell Telephone Exchange Company by a jury on Dec. 1, 1922, is excessive. If there was any damage it should have been for merely a nominal amount, the court held. In his opinion Judge Dickinson says there was no necessity for Grimes, who valued his time at $50 a day, losing precious moments because central kept getting wrong numbers. His stenographer getting $2 a day should have been assigned that duty, the court said.

Meeting to be Held in A. of C. Rooms Here Thursday

A meeting will be held in the rooms of the Association of Commerce on Fourth street on the subject of organizing a Burleigh county cow testing association, Thursday at 1:30 p. m. More than 25 farmers of Burleigh county are expected into the city for the meeting.

Attention is being given by the postoffice department to the Association of Commerce petitions for better mail service between Bismarck and Fort Yates and Cannonball, according to information received by A. F. Bradley, secretary. H. H. Billamy, fourth assistant postmaster, general Washington wrote to Mr. Bradley that the matter was being taken up with postmasters at Cannonball and Ft. Yates for the purpose of securing certain information from them. Mr. Billamy is in charge of the rural mail service in the United States.

25 EAGLE SCOUTS IN BISMARCK ON JOURNEY TO YELLOWSTONE PARK AS REWARD FOR WINNING HIGH RANK

Twenty-five Eagle Scouts of Fargo Falls and Fargo with the addition of three Bismarck Scouts, who joined the party here, left Bismarck early this afternoon to continue their three weeks trip to Yellowstone Park. It was a happy bunch, both in the Bismarck tourist camp and in three big trucks as they pulled out.

The party reached Bismarck about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Jamestown, which was the first night stop. They reached the Bismarck tourist camp a mile and a half east of town, and then were taken to the swimming pool where the Scouts soon forgot their dusty journey from Jamestown.

After supper at their camp, several Bismarck men, fathers of Scouts, took the boys for an automobile ride. They visited old Fort Lincoln and the old Indian village ruins. A party of Bismarck Scouts met them as they reached here late yesterday and cheered them as they departed.

Insular administrative affairs were wholly in the hands of Governor-General Leonard Wood and his American appointive assistants. He and his American aides must assume the whole burden of government until successors can be found for the resigned officials.

So far Governor Wood has not met officially indicated how he will meet the situation.

BRITISH NOTE NOW COMPLETED

Cabinet Meeting Is Postponed Because It Is Not Ready

London, July 18.—Owing to the non-completion of certain clauses in the British draft of the reply to the German reparations memorandum and to the explanation of the cabinet meeting that was to be held today was postponed until tomorrow morning.

The most rigid silence is being observed by every one connected with the foreign office regarding the nature of the British response.

MANY BIDS ON MINE
Valva, N. D., July 18.—Several bids for the purchase of the assets of the Valva Coal Products company, now under a receivership, have been received by A. P. Bergert, receiver. A bid of $1,093.37 was submitted by Stevens Brothers of St. Paul and Garrison for the entire equipment and assets. The brothers have been operating a big strip mine at Garrison and if they gain control of the Products property, it is believed they would develop it this fall.

Mr. Bergert will submit the bids to District Judge Burr for final action.

MINOT COUNCIL WINE BANNER
Minot, N. D., July 18.—Minot district council Boy Scouts of America, has won the banner offered by Regional Scout Executive C. N. Messerve of St. Paul, for the first class council in region 10 securing the largest proportional increase in Scout enrollment during the recent national "roundup." Region 10 includes North and South Dakota and Minnesota.

STATEMENT OF INTEREST DUE TO MILL BODY

State Treasurer Says $147,000 Was Due on July 1 to Meet Bond Interest

Statement of the amount of interest owed by the Mill and Elevator Association on the bonds issued to build the state-owned mill and elevator at Grand Forks has been sent to General Manager C. E. Austin by Treasurer John Steen. The statement shows $147,162.97 interest was due July 1.

Bonds issued total $3,000,000, of which $1,400,000 are 6 percent bonds and $1,600,000 are 5 1/2 percent bonds. The total interest due July 1, 1923, amounted to $258,000, but $110,837.03 was deducted, leaving $147,162.97.

The statement does not include interest due by the mill and elevator association on the $25,100.00 old mill and elevator bonds issued on the Drake mill property, dated January 1, 1920 and cancelled October 8, 1921.

According to the terms of a mortgage and trust deed held by the state treasurer as trustee, and executed by the industrial commission Dec. 27, 1922, the mill and elevator association is required to pay the interest. If default is made by the association in payment of interest, the trust is entitled to possession of all property and to demand the surrender and yielding up of the property covered by the trust deed and mortgage, according to its terms.

Regardless of whether the mill and elevator association pays any interest on the bonds, however, the interest is being paid as fast as coupons are presented to the state treasurer, interest money being derived from taxation.

Not Typical of All
The Wallace case is not typical of all of the cases of persons for whom homes were built—about 50 in number—but is typical of most cases especially in that the cost exceeded $5,000 and the person for whom the home was built claimed a verbal contract for delivery of the house at a price much less than the house cost the state.

Settlement under the decision of the court, it is believed, will reduce the losses of the Home Building Association, since it is declared that value of the houses in most cases is something more than the contract price claimed by the persons for whom they were built.

In constraining the law to mean that the price of houses built could not exceed $5,000 the supreme court decided a question which was battled over in political campaigns. Non-partisan officials declaring that the section of the law meant that a house could cost more than $5,000, but that the needlessness of the person for whom built could not exceed $5,000. The court said:

$5,000 Limitation
"From these portions of the act we are of the opinion that two propositions are clear: first, that to use the language of the legislature, 'No home shall be built or purchased or sold at a price to exceed $5,000.'"

HOUSES TO GO TO BUYERS FOR "FAIR VALUE"

Court Holds That Home Buyer May Get His Money Back on House at Fair Price

$5,000 LIMIT UPHOLD

Law Provided Home Could Not be Built Costing More than $5,000, Court Holds

The supreme court, reversing the decision of District Judge Thomas Fugh in the case of George E. Wallace, former state tax commissioner, to force the Home Building Association of North Dakota to deliver him a deed for a home built by the state association in Bismarck today decided:

1. Section 6 of the Home Builders' Act is held to authorize construction of homes for members of the Home Buyers' League, who have assumed the prescribed contingent liability for the state. Wallace was not a member of a Home Buyers' League.

2. The same section "is construed to place a limitation of $5,000 upon the price of a home to be built for such a member, and, in applying the limitation, the house and lot is considered as real property and as an entity."

3. Since the Wallace contract was invalid because he was not a member of a Home Buyers' League and by reason of the price being in excess of that authorized by the statute, the court holds "the contract will not be specifically enforced, but in an action to enforce it, equitable consideration will be applied to an alternative judgment, giving the purchaser the option to obtain a return of advances made with interest or to require the state to convey upon the payment or securing to him of the reasonable value of the property."

The case also was remanded to Judge Fugh for further action. The court's opinion was signed by Justices Christianson, Nussell and Bronson and District Judge Cooley.

Sustains State
The decision sustains the contentions of the state in its supplemental brief and oral argument said Attorney-General George Shafer. "We contended that the contract was invalid, if there was a contract, because the $5,000 limitation had been exceeded and Mr. Wallace was not a member of the Home Buyers' League. Contending that the contract was invalid, we could not ask that the state act on it. In the situation we contended the fair and just solution was that the purchaser should turn back the house and obtain a return of advances, or the property should be conveyed at a reasonable value."

In the Wallace case he contended that the state agreed to furnish him the home for $5,300, excluding extras, and Judge Fugh held that the state had made a contract with him and should deliver the house at the agreed price of $5,300.

The house cost, according to books of the Home Building Association, $11,720.45.

Under the decision Mr. Wallace may return the house and, receive back from the Home Building Association $2,900 he advanced or he may obtain the house for the "reasonable value." Under a law of the legislature it was provided that in liquidating affairs of the Home Building Association, arbitration might be resorted to fix a fair value of the property, at which price it might be delivered.

Not Typical of All
The Wallace case is not typical of all of the cases of persons for whom homes were built—about 50 in number—but is typical of most cases especially in that the cost exceeded $5,000 and the person for whom the home was built claimed a verbal contract for delivery of the house at a price much less than the house cost the state.

HOME BUILDERS' CASE REVERSED

U. S. OPENS NEW SUIT AGAINST HARVESTER CO.

Seeks Division of International Harvester Company Into 3 Corporations

NQCOMPETITION, CHARGE

Action Is Started in District Court at St. Paul by Attorney-General

St. Paul, July 18.—The United States government, through Attorney-General Harry M. Daugherty, yesterday filed a petition in federal district court here seeking division of the International Harvester Company into three separate corporations.

The government alleges that the dissolution decree entered against the company in 1918 did not restore competition in the farm industry; that the company still is a monopoly and that the number of competitive concerns is shrinking rapidly.

The dissolution petition was presented by a special representative of the Attorney-General's office in Washington, which will handle the case for the government. Federal court is not in session here now and the petition was locked up in a safe until the return of Federal Judge J. P. McGee and United States District Attorney Lafayette French Jr. from Duluth.

Makes Reply
The filing of the petition brought about a speedy reply from Alexander Legge of Chicago, president of the company. Mr. Legge's statement contended that the company was acquitted of wrongful acts and unfair competition in 1918.

He said that the petition charges the company with lowering prices to the detriment of competitors, not with raising them to the injury of the farmer.

If rulings on the petition, he said, will show that farm machinery prices are the result of sharp competition in the industry.

Still Combination
The government will seek a new decree holding that the Harvester company "still is a combination in restraint of interstate trade and commerce."

Farmers of the company will suffer "if the company's monopolistic control of farm machinery is allowed to continue," the petition recites. The 1918 decree, according to Mr. Daugherty, has proved inadequate to break up the alleged restraint of trade and production of farm machinery.

The complaint mentions the following companies as being in combination to restrain trade:
The International Harvester Co. of America, the International Flat Tread Co., The Wisconsin Steel Co., The Wisconsin Lumber Co., The Illinois Northern Railway and the Chicago, Western Pullman and Southern railway companies and the officers and directors of all of these.

INCORPORATIONS

Articles of incorporation filed with the Secretary of State:

The Page Elevator Company, Page, Cass county; capital stock $25,000; incorporators, John Brandt, Joe Still, W. H. Dennis, E. C. Martin, E. D. Wallace, J. C. Miller, Ed. Bumgardner.

Page Lumber Co., Page, Cass county; capital stock $25,000; incorporators, W. H. Dennis, H. Erickson, John Brandt, Ed. Wallace, E. C. Morton, Sig Bjeken.

Expansion Elevator Company, Expansion, Mercer county; capital stock $8,000; incorporators, H. W. Bohrer, Mannover, S. H. Hildebrand, Jacob Schwable, Ferdinand Rahn, Fred Adolph Sr., all of Krem.

WARD TO ISSUE $250,000

BONDS FOR CASH BASIS
Minot, N. D., July 18.—County Auditor R. W. Kennard has signed $250,000 worth of bonds, which Ward county has floated for placing it on a cash basis as required under laws enacted by the last legislature, and also to care for claims of school districts and other political subdivisions for delinquent tax payments and interest, collected by the county.

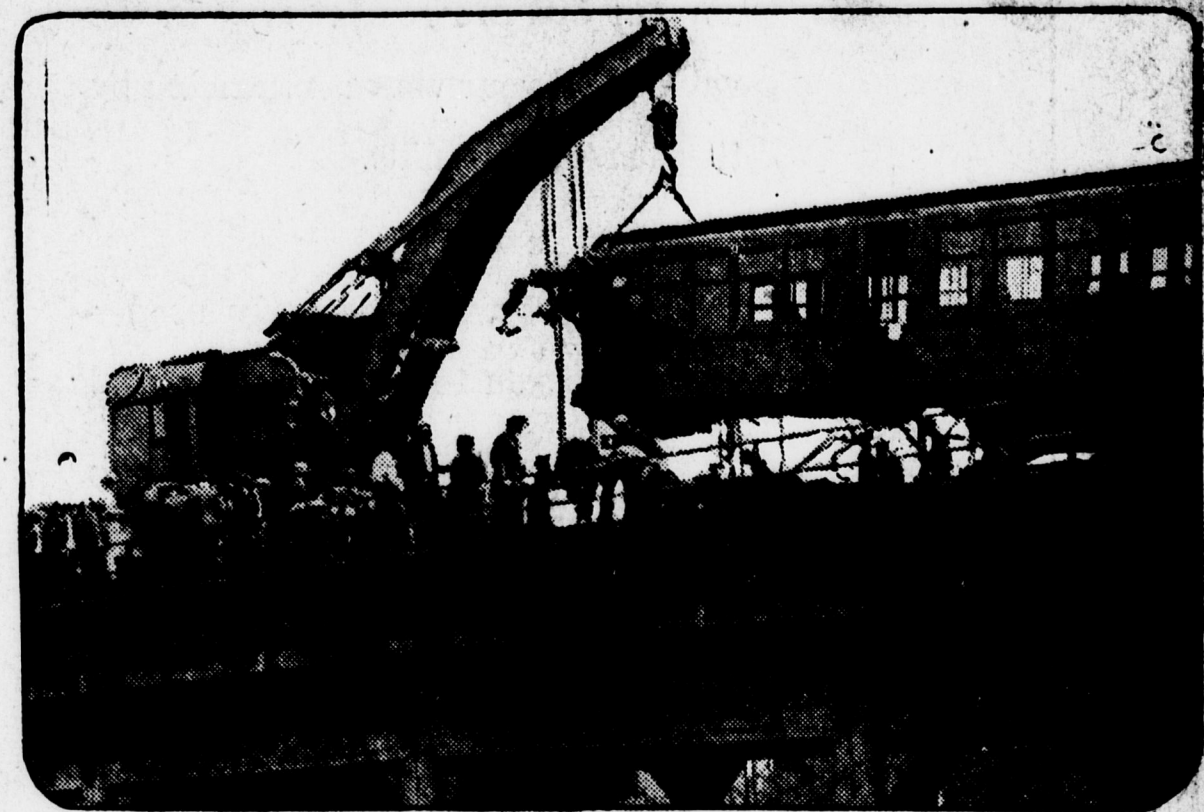

The bonds were purchased several weeks ago by the Second National, Union National and Scandinavian American banks of Minot. They bear 5-1/2 per cent interest and mature in 1943.

Subdivision claims total approximately $142,000, it is said.

BRIDGE ASSURED

New England, N. D., July 18.—Four miles of highway, including Main St. here and a large concrete permanent bridge over the Cannon Ball river, here will be built this summer through federal aid, it was announced following a meeting of state highway commission, representatives and local county and city commissioners. The bridge over the Cannon Ball will cost more than the city or county could raise to put into it and it is possible only through federal aid, it was said. The plans were approved for immediate call for bids and contract award.

HARVESTER IN ANSWER TO NEW PROSECUTION

Now Charged with Lowering Prices Too Greatly, Company Head Declares

The Harvester company's attitude in regard to the petition just filed against it by the government in the United States district court at St. Paul, Minn., is set forth in a statement by Alexander Legge, president of the company, which has been received by P. R. Fields, branch manager of the International Harvester Company of America in Bismarck. Mr. Legge's statement says:

"This petition is a continuation of the suit brought against us eleven years ago. Upon the hearing of that case held more than nine years ago the Harvester company was acquitted, both by the findings of the court and by the attorney general's admission, of any wrongful dealings or unfair practices toward customers or competitors, but, to insure the fullest competition, a decree was entered in 1918 requiring the company to sell to competitors certain complete lines of harvesting machinery, and to limit its sales representation to a single dealer in any one town."

"That decree further provided that at the end of a test period which has now expired the government might ask the court to determine whether or not the free competition contemplated by the Sherman law exists in the farm implement industry. This step the government has now taken."

"As we understand it, the sole issue raised by the present petition relates to competitive conditions with respect to harvesting machines only. It does not charge the company with unduly raising the price of harvesting machinery to the grave injury of the American farmer, as was charged in 1912, but it does charge that the company has been unduly depressing the price of harvesting machinery, particularly since 1920, to the injury of its competitors."

"During the last few years the whole farm implement industry has been in an abnormal and distressing situation which directly reflects the situation of the farmer. High costs of labor, material and transportation have burdened it with high manufacturing costs, while on the other hand the prices for agricultural products have left the farmer unable to buy his normal and needed requirements of farming machinery."

"We are confident that the hearing on the present petition will clearly show the Harvester company is not in any way responsible for these conditions in the farm implement industry. Prices of harvesting machinery are the result of vigorous competition, exactly the kind of competition which the Sherman law was enacted to preserve, and are fairly comparable with the prices of other implements which the government concedes were fixed by normal competition."

Western N. D. Lawyers Named

Three western North Dakota lawyers are among those honored by vote of members of the state bar association, their names to be placed before the Governor for selection of members of the state board of bar examiners. The attorneys, in order of their standing, are: Charles J. Fisk, Minot, present member of board; Percy Lawrence, Fargo; George A. Bangs, Grand Forks; C. J. Young, Bismarck; John Knauft, Bismarck; J. M. Hanley, Mandan; Charles E. Wolfe, Wahpeton; W. F. Burnett, Dickinson; S. D. Adams, Lisbon.

DEATH CLAIMS PIONEER AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Mrs. Sarah V. Lowe Woodmansee Succumbs This Afternoon to Strain of Nervous Breakdown

IN STATE MANY YEARS

Mrs. Sarah B. Lowe Woodmansee, pioneer settler in the state and resident of Bismarck for the past twenty-two years died this afternoon at 1:20 o'clock at the family residence on 423 Fifth street after an illness of but five weeks resulting from a nervous breakdown and complications. She was 69 years of age.

During her years of residence in Bismarck, Mrs. Woodmansee had made many friends. She was an active member of the Methodist church and took a leading part in all its activities during her many years residence here. For twenty years before coming to Bismarck Mrs. Woodmansee resided in Steele, where they took an active part in the up-building of the community life in that vicinity in the early days when the frontier life developed the character of its individuals.

Mrs. Woodmansee was born at Urbana, Ohio, Dec. 3, 1854, and was married to T. J. Woodmansee of St. Clairsville, Ohio, Dec. 24, 1874. They migrated to North Dakota about eight years later. The deceased is survived by her husband, Mr. Woodmansee, who is ten years older than his wife, a daughter, Mrs. Robert Murray of Edmore, Can. who was called to the bedside of her mother several weeks ago and a son, Harry J. Woodmansee of the Harris & Woodmansee Stationery store of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Woodmansee lacked but a year of celebrating their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

While arrangements have not been definitely completed it is thought that funeral services will be held from the McCabe Methodist church Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with Rev. S. F. Halford officiating. Interment will take place in the Fairview cemetery.

JOHNSON TO HAVE 80,000 PLURALITY

Speculation Is Rife as to Next Senatorial Election in 1925

St. Paul, July 18.—Reports from 2,996 precincts out of 3,520 in the state give Johnson 266,545; Preus 186,786, and Carley 18,245, a lead of 79,459 for Johnson over Preus.

St. Paul, July 18.—With the United States Senatorial situation settled now until the 1924 fall election interest of political observers were turning today to probable developments when the 6-year senatorial term is up for consideration.

Magnum Johnson, Farmer-Labor, its chosen in Monday's election by a plurality of more than 80,000, will serve under that mandate through the unexpired term of the late Senator Nelson, which ends in March, 1925. "His friends declared it a natural conclusion" to assume that he will seek the six-year term and the usual speculation began cropping out today as to his likely opponent in the Republican ranks.

Governor J. A. O. Preus, Republican, who met his first political defeat at the hands of Johnson Monday, continued silent today, saying he had no intention of leaving a statement at this time. His term as Governor expires January 1, 1925.

Senator-elect Johnson was back home on his farm at Kimball, Minn., today ready "to pitch in" and help get the harvesting done by the way before he formulates his program for action in Washington.

LADIES AND ALUMNI HELP

Wilton July 18.—The Wilton Ladies Aid made a donation of $23.60 to be used on the local school. Large new foot scrapers and cocoa mats have been ordered to keep some of the mud out during wet weather and the balance will be used for books for the high school library.

The class of 1922 voted to turn over their balance of $26.00 to the H. S. library and this was done by A. P. Bradley. Through entertainment funds, etc., two hundred books were added to the grade library, giving each room twenty-five new books.

WARD DANCES HELD ORDERLY
Minot, N. D., July 18.—Burl dances in Ward county are being conducted in an orderly manner, declare deputy sheriffs. In a very few instances there have been slight disorders in the dance halls but the offenders are generally removed and the dance proceeds.

Judge Coffey Here
District Judge J. A. Coffey of Jamestown was here today to take up matters at the courthouse.

GENERAL WOOD ASSAILED IN PHILIPPINES

Entire Cabinet and Council Resigns in Protest Over Governor's Actions

AIM INTERFERENCE

Charge That He Desired to Interfere in All of the Smallest Details

Manila, P. I., July 18.—The Philippine Islands and the city of Manila were virtually without native participation in the higher departments of their government today as a result of the resignation yesterday of four cabinet ministers, the president of the senate and speaker of the house of representatives. The secretary of interior and mayor of Manila had previously resigned.

Insular administrative affairs were wholly in the hands of Governor-General Leonard Wood and his American appointive assistants. He and his American aides must assume the whole burden of government until successors can be found for the resigned officials.

So far Governor Wood has not officially indicated how he will meet the situation.

Yesterday's resignations followed all-night and all-day sessions of members of the various Filipino groups, of the council of state and of the legislative council at the governor-general's official residence.

Led by Manuel Quezon, president of the senate, the officials marched to the office of the Governor-General and tendered their resignations in connection with which they read a statement giving their reasons. The officials said they resigned jointly as the council of state and individually as department heads.

The reasons for the resignations given were objections to what the officials characterized as the Governor-General's policy of wishing to intervene and control even to smallest details "our government, both insular and local, in utter disregard of the responsibility of department heads and others concerned."

PHONE DAMAGE IS TOO GREAT

Case Must be Tried Over Again, Court Rules

Minneapolis, July 18.—The only case in history in which a subscriber was awarded damages from a telephone company for poor service must be tried over again, according to a decision of District Judge Dickinson, filed today.

Judge Dickinson declares the verdict for $1,000, awarded George S. Grimes, Minneapolis attorney, against the Northwestern Bell Telephone Exchange Company by a jury on Dec. 1, 1922, is excessive. If there was any damage it should have been for merely a nominal amount, the court held. In his opinion Judge Dickinson says there was no necessity for Grimes, who valued his time at $50 a day, losing precious moments because central kept getting wrong numbers. His stenographer getting $3 a day should have been assigned that duty, the court said.

COW CIRCUIT IS PLANNED

Meeting to be Held in A. of C. Rooms Here Thursday

A meeting will be held in the rooms of the Association of Commerce, on Fourth street, on the subject of organizing a Burleigh county cow testing association, Thursday at 1:30 p. m. More than 25 farmers of Burleigh county are expected into the city for the meeting.

Attention is being given by the postoffice department to the Association of Commerce petitions for better mail service between Bismarck and Fort Yates and Cannonball, according to information received by A. F. Bradley, secretary. H. B. Billamy, fourth assistant postmaster-general, Washington, wrote to Mr. Bradley that the matter was being taken up with postmasters at Cannonball and Ft. Yates for the purpose of securing certain information from them. Mr. Billamy is in charge of the rural mail service in the United States.

HETTINGER RETIRES NURSE
Mott, N. D., July 17.—Because of some "sore spots" over the strict enforcement of quarantine and other health regulations by Miss Ragna Frederickson, Hettinger county Red Cross nurse, the county commission has decided to retire her and obtain another Red Cross nurse as soon as possible. In taking the action, the commission received many expressions of appreciation of the work of Miss Frederickson, who has been offered another position elsewhere at a higher salary.

25 EAGLE SCOUTS IN BISMARCK ON JOURNEY TO YELLOWSTONE PARK AS REWARD FOR WINNING HIGH RANK

Twenty-five Eagle Scouts of Fargo Falls and Fargo with the addition of three Bismarck Scouts who joined the party here, left Bismarck early this afternoon to continue their three weeks trip to Yellowstone Park. It was a happy bunch both in the Bismarck tourist camp and in three big trucks as they pulled out.

The party reached Bismarck about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Jamestown, which was the first night stop. They unloaded at the Bismarck tourist camp a mile and a half east of town, and then were taken to the swimming pool where the Scouts soon forgot their dusty journey from Jamestown.

After supper at their camp, several Bismarck men, fathers of Scouts, took the boys for an automobile ride. They visited old Fort Lincoln and the old Indian village ruins. A party of Bismarck Scouts met them as they reached here late yesterday and cheered them as they departed, their departure being delayed because of necessary repairs to one of the trucks.

The trip was made possible by the Kiwanis club of Fargo, and is a reward to the Scouts for their efforts in achieving the Eagle rank. An Eagle Scout must pass the following tests: first aid, life-saving, personal health, public health, cooking, camping, bird study, path finding, pioneering, athletics or physical development, with ten additional tests selected either by the local or district Scout Council.

The boys are traveling in trucks obtained from the highway commission, the trucks being of the surplus war property.

The Bismarck boys who joined the party were Bruce and Glenn Wallace and Art Nathan. John Lofthouse, member of the Fargo trip, whose parents moved here recently, was to join the party but an injury to his knee prevented him from doing so. The boys are in charge of Scout Master Westrom.

FIRST FIELD OF WHEAT CUT IN MORTON CO.

Mandan, July 18.—A new record for early harvesting of wheat was set Saturday by Abe Lehto, who lives 19 miles southwest of the city. Lehto cut a field of 80 acres of marquis wheat, which was dead ripe. Several other fields of Morton county are about ready for cutting.

Black rust, which has made its appearance in Morton county in isolated cases will not cause great damage.

MAN OVERCOME BY THE HEAT

J. A. Cull of Fargo Quickly Revived—Temperature Is Soaring

J. A. Cull of Fargo, of Bishop, Brissman and Company, was overcome by the heat while at the state capitol today conversing with Governor Nestos, but was quickly revived.

Another case of a visitor in the city being overcome by the heat was reported late yesterday. A man fell on the sidewalk on Main street, but after receiving aid from bystanders, went about his business without giving his name.

The thermometer was starting to show a season's record this afternoon. It was 92 at 2 p. m., while the season's high mark is 94.5.

The heat wave is general over the Northwest. Some relief is in sight, according to the weather bureau, which predicts somewhat cooler weather tonight.

Temperatures have fallen in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and there is a high pressure area over Seattle which may come this way.

The coldest place in the United States this morning, according to the weather bureau, was Winnemucca, in the deserts of Nevada. The lowest there was 40 degrees above zero.

BRITISH NOTE NOW COMPLETED

Cabinet Meeting Is Postponed Because It Is Not Ready

London, July 18.—Owing to the non-completion of certain clauses in the British draft of the reply to the German reparations memorandum and the explanatory letter to accompany it, the cabinet meeting that was to be held today was postponed until tomorrow morning.

The most rigid silence is being observed by every one connected with the foreign office regarding the nature of the British response.

MANY BIDS ON MINE
Velva, N. D., July 18.—Several bids for the purchase of the assets of the Velva Coal Products company, now under a receivership, have been received by A. P. Berget, receiver. A bid of $1,003.37 was submitted by Stevens Brothers of St. Paul and Garrison for the entire equipment and assets. The brothers have been operating a big strip mine at Garrison and if they gain control of the Products property, it is believed they would develop it this fall.

Mr. Berget will submit the bids to District Judge Burr for final action.

MINOT COUNCIL WINS BANNER
Minot, N. D., July 18.—Minot district council Boy Scouts of America, has won the banner offered by Regional Scout Executive C. N. Meserve of St. Paul for the first class council in region 10 securing the largest proportional increase in Scout enrollment during the recent national "roundup." Region 10 includes North and South Dakota and Minnesota.

HOUSES TO GO TO BUYERS FOR "FAIR VALUE"

Court Holds That Home Buyer May Get His Money Back on House at Fair Price

$5,000 LIMIT UPHELD

Law Provided House Couldn't be Built Costing More than $5,000, Court Holds

The supreme court, reversing the decision of District Judge Thomas Hugh in the case of George E. Wallace, former state tax commissioner, to force the Home Building Association of North Dakota to deliver him a deed for a home built by the state association in Bismarck today decided:

1. Section 6 of the Home Builders' Act is held to authorize construction of homes for members of the Home Buyers' League, who have assumed the prescribed contingent liability to the state. Wallace was not a member of a Home Buyers' League.

2. The same section "is construed to place a limitation of $5,000 upon the price of a home to be built by such a member, and, in applying the limitation, the house and lot is considered as real property and as an entity."

3. Since the Wallace contract was invalid because he was not a member of a Home Buyers' League and by reason of that authorized by the statute, the court holds "the contract will not be specifically enforced, but in an action to enforce it, equitable considerations will be applied to an alternative judgment directed, giving the purchaser the option to obtain a return of advancements made with interest or to require the state to convey upon the payment or securing by him of the reasonable value of the property."

The case also was remanded to Judge Pugh for further action. The court's opinion was signed by Justices Christianson, Nussle and Bronson and District Judge Cooley.

Sustains State
The decision sustains the contentions of the state in its supplemental brief and oral argument, said Attorney-General George Shaper. "We contended that the contract was invalid, if there was a contract, because the $5,000 limitation had been exceeded and Mr. Wallace was not a member of a Home Buyers' League. Contending that the contract was invalid, we could not ask that the state act. In the situation, we contended the fair and just solution was that the purchaser should turn back the house and obtain a return of advancements, or the property should be conveyed at a reasonable value."

In the Wallace case he contended that the state agreed to furnish him the home for $5,300, excluding extras, and Judge Pugh held that the state had made a contract with him and should deliver a house at the agreed price of $5,300. The house cost, according to books of the Home Building Association, $11,720.45. Under the decision Mr. Wallace may return the house and receive back from the Home Building Association $2,900 he advanced or he may obtain the house for the "reasonable value." Under a law of the 1922 legislature it was provided that in liquidating affairs of the Home Building Association, arbitration might be resorted to fix a fair value of the property, at which price it might be delivered.

Not Typical of All
The Wallace case is not typical of all of the cases of persons for whom homes were built—about 50 in number—but is typical of most cases, especially in that the cost exceeded $5,000 and the person for whom the home was built claimed a verbal contract for delivery of the house at a price much less than the house cost the state.

Settlement under the decision of the court, it is believed, will reduce the losses of the Home Building Association, since it is declared the value of the houses in most cases is something more than the contract price claimed by the persons for whom they were built.

In construing the law to mean that the price of houses built could not exceed $5,000 the supreme court decided a question which was battled over in political campaigns. Non-partisan officials declaring that the section of the law meant that the house could cost more than $5,000 but that the indebtedness of the person for whom built could not exceed $5,000. The court said:

"From these portions of the act, we are of the opinion that two propositions are clear: First, that to use the language of the legislature, 'No home shall be built, or purchased or sold, at a price to exceed $5,000.' The court said:

For Friday and Saturday, Douglas MacLean comes in "A Man of Action" with Raymond who will be remembered as the butler in "The Hotentot" as Douglas' fun-producing partner.

THE CAPITOL

To build up a military despotism, to hold a hundred and fifty million people in slavery, the Bolsheviks have sacrificed every former comfort and joy of the Russian people. In the streets of Moscow, women beg for bread. In all of the cities, desolated and deserted, little children cry for milk. Bread lines and soup kitchens are the symbols of Sovietism. In the shadow of the Winter Palace, once the home of the haughty Romanoffs, the people scramble for free wood dragged from the country upon sleighs and distributed to all who pledge allegiance to Bolshevism.

These scenes and more, all so characteristic of the unhappy Russia of today, are shown in "Red Russia Revealed," the Fox special reel which is to be shown for two days starting tonight at the Capitol theater. They explain vividly and dramatically the price that has been paid by a once great nation for brief hesitancy in the terrible

Only Three People May Worship at Once

ABOVE IS THE ALTAR IN THE LITTLE CHURCH ON MONTE CASINO, NEAR CINCINNATI. BELOW: THE SMALLEST CHURCH IN THE WORLD.

It still supplies churches all over the country with sacramental wine, though the monks have abandoned it as a permanent place of abode. They come from Covington to tend the vineyard and the little chapel is used now only infrequently.

Private Worship.

The "smallest church" was constructed primarily as a place for private devotion and meditation. On its altar is a statue of the Mother of Christ, holding the dead form of her Son in her arms following the crucifixion.

The chapel is 10 feet long and 6 feet wide. It has a tiny steeple, rising about 20 feet from the ground. Small stained-glass windows pierce its vine-covered stone walls.

The chapel was built decades ago by Father Otto, one of the early monks, who was a stonemason. Special permission had to be obtained from the pope to construct it.

The attached farm, cared for by a family on shares, is the only bonded winery remaining in Kentucky. Its terraces, vines and cellars still produce wine of the finest quality, but only for sacramental use.

KASTNER WINS GRAIN SUIT IN SUPREME COURT

Commission House Is Held Liable on Storage Tickets By High Court

AROSE AT GLEN ULLIN

Grain Houses Liable when Storage Tickets Not Guarded by Local Houses.

The supreme court today affirmed the case in which Peter Kastner sought to recover from A. C. Andrews, doing business as the Andrews Grain Company of Minneapolis, value of wheat stored on storage tickets in the Glen Ullin Co-operative Elevator Company and sold through the Andrews company.

The court found the Andrews Grain Company had loaned money to the Glen Ullin Co-operative Elevator Company to buy grain to be handled by the commission company, and that the elevator company had shipped grain required to redeem outstanding storage tickets, which grain was sold by the Andrews company.

The holder of a warehouse receipt, such as Kastner, was not estopped from asserting his title as against a purchaser in good faith from a warehouseman, the court held.

Started Suit
Peter Kastner brought the action in the Burleigh district court on behalf of several farmers who claimed to have placed grain in the Glen Ullin Co-operative Elevator Company's warehouse in Glen Ullin, the wheat being deposited between Oct. 19, 1920 and March 1921. Negotiable warehouse receipts were issued.

Between March 7, 1921 and June 16, 1921, the complaint charged, "the defendant did, without the knowledge or consent and in violation of their rights, take and convert to its own use and appropriate to its own purpose and benefit, all of said wheat."

The value of wheat was $3,582.11, it was claimed, less freight and other charges which made the net claim $2,979.86. The plaintiff claimed the highest market price between the time of conversion and the date of trial.

The Glen Ullin Co-operative Elevator company from time to time shipped wheat to the Andrews Grain Company at Minneapolis for the purpose of selling on the market. The plaintiffs charged that the Andrews Grain Company "had actual knowledge of the fact that same was stored with the said elevator company, and that it was aware of the provisions of the warehouse laws of the state of North Dakota, and it knowingly appropriated the same to its own use, knowing that said elevator company had outstanding storage receipts therefor and that it was and would be unable to redeem said receipts."

The elevator company, the plaintiff alleged, is insolvent.

The Andrews Grain Company, in its answer, admitted it sold wheat for the Glen Ullin company but declared that it settled with and paid the Glen Ullin company for every bushel of wheat it got from them, that it took the wheat and handled it on the market in due course of business, and that "it was innocent at all times of any of the matters and things set forth by the plaintiff."

District Judge Berry, sitting in the case, found for the plaintiff, from which order the defendant appealed.

Bottineau, N. D., July 18.—The forestry state normal school of this city will be closed at the end of a five week term of summer school, which begins next Monday and will be placed under the supervision of a caretaker, it was definitely decided here today by Joseph A. Kitchen, member of the state board of administration after a citizens' committee had notified him that it would be impossible to secure enough private funds to continue the operation of the school. Closing of the school is necessitated by the fact that an appropriation voted by the last session of the state legislature was eliminated by the governor as an economy step.

Mr. Kitchen came here late yesterday, vested with full power to act in the matter, and after several informal conferences announced his decision this afternoon. ## NOTES SENT TO MILL CITY

Equity Packing Plant Notes Turned Over for Collection

Fargo, July 18.—When John Martin assumed charge Monday of the Equity Packing company affairs as receiver appointed by the court, he found that the $500,000 of notes held by the company against buyers of stock in the concern had been turned over to a Minneapolis collection agency for collection. The notes are already in the mill city concern's possession it was claimed yesterday.

According to President C. W. Reichert of the packing company the board had made the decision to engage an outside firm to make the collection. It was reported yesterday that an attempt will be made by the receiver to regain possession of these notes for the company if the receivership is made permanent at the hearing Saturday.

It was not disclosed what terms had been entered into by the company with the collection agency. Mr. Reichert declared the terms were more reasonable than could be obtained in Fargo.

A meeting of the board is to be held soon at which it will be decided whether the receivership is to be opposed. Mr. Reichert stated yesterday he said he did not know what the board would decide.

Mr. Martin was named receiver by Judge A. T. Cole Saturday but did not take charge until Monday.

Fargo, July 18.—Farmers residing in the vicinity of Grand Forks will be enabled to haul grain directly to the state mill and elevator during the greater part if not all of the coming grain season.

A wagon dump is now being arranged at the elevator recently purchased by the state industrial commission from J. D. Bacon & Son, and, according to C. E. Austin, general manager, the improvement will probably be completed in time to receive grain from near the first of the threshing season.

Grain taken in at the wagon dump will be transported to the big elevator in cars for the time being, Mr. Austin said, until such a time as a more efficient system for carrying grain to the elevator can be devised and installed. Mr. Austin said that a compressed air over-head system would probably be used for this purpose.

At the time the mill and elevator site was purchased, the land upon which the Bacon elevator site was included in the purchase. Mr. Bacon and sons, however, retained possession of the building until it was recently purchased by the commission.

000.00, except in the case of a farm home, in which the selling price shall not exceed $10,000.00, and that the homes are to be built for members of home buyers' leagues only, who in turn are under a contingent liability over the state to the extent of 15 percent of the price at which their respective homes were sold to them.

Crux of Case

The crux of the case, as tried before Judge Pugh, was whether or not verbal estimates as to the prices of homes built by the state, as alleged to have been made and shown by such records as were available, constituted a contract. Wallace maintained that it did. When the affairs of the association, which became muddled, were gone over by accountants and the actual cost of the houses fixed, it was found that they were, in the case of every one of the fifty or more houses built in Bismarck, Mandan and Fargo higher than the original estimates.

The supreme court, on Dec. 20, 1922, made an order remanding the case to District Court for the taking of additional testimony, on the reasonable value of the home of Wallace at the time he took possession, the reasonable rental value, the value of any improvements since made, whether or not Wallace was a member of a Home Buyers' League and if so the extent of the obligations due the association from the league of which he was a member.

Under date of March 7, 1923, Judge Pugh filed revised findings in which he adhered to the findings and conclusions originally found by him in all respects, except that he found the contract price to be $5,250, or $100 more than the figure which he originally found was the contract price, according to the state's brief.

The state, in its supplemental brief, urged that Wallace was not entitled to specific performance of the alleged contract because the alleged contract price for the home was not specifically and definitely agreed upon, because the terms and conditions of payment were not definite, because the contract was in violation of the law which prohibited the association from building or selling a home costing more than $5,000, because the contract was not reasonable and because Wallace was not a member of a Home Buyers' League.

KASTNER WINS GRAIN SUIT IN SUPREME COURT

Commission House Is Held Liable on Storage Tickets By High Court

AROSE AT GLEN ULLIN

Grain Houses Liable when Storage Tickets Not Guarded by Local Houses

The supreme court today affirmed the case in which Peter Kastner sought to recover from A. C. Andrews, doing business as the Andrews Grain Company of Minneapolis, value of wheat stored on storage tickets in the Glen Ullin Co-operative Elevator Company and sold through the Andrews company. The court found the Andrews Grain Company had loaned money to the Glen Ullin Co-operative Elevator Company to buy grain to be handled by the commission company, and that the elevator company had shipped grain required to redeem outstanding storage tickets, which grain was sold by the Andrews company.

The holder of a warehouse receipt, such as Kastner, was not estopped from asserting his title as against a purchaser in good faith from a warehouseman, the court held.

Peter Kastner brought the action in the Burleigh district court on behalf of several farmers who claimed to have placed grain in the Glen Ullin Co-operative Elevator Company's warehouse in Glen Ullin, the wheat being deposited between Oct. 19, 1920 and March 1921. Negotiable warehouse receipts were issued.

Between March 7, 1921 and June 16, 1921, the complaint charged, "the defendant did, without the knowledge or consent and in violation of their rights, take and convert to its own use and appropriate to its own purpose and benefit, all of said wheat."

The value of wheat, was $3,582.11, it was claimed, less freight and other charges which made the net claim $2,979.86. The plaintiff claimed the highest market price between the time of conversion and the date of trial.

The Glen Ullin Co-operative Elevator company from time to time shipped wheat to the Andrews Grain Company at Minneapolis for the purpose of selling on the market. The plaintiffs charged that the Andrews Grain Company "had actual knowledge of the fact that same was stored with the said elevator company as bailee, under the provisions of the warehouse laws of the state of North Dakota, and it knowingly appropriated the same to its own use, knowing that said elevator company had outstanding storage receipts therefor and that it was and would be unable to redeem said receipts."

The elevator company, the plaintiff alleged, is insolvent.

The Andrews Grain Company, in its answer, admitted it sold wheat for the Glen Ullin company but declared that it settled with and paid the Glen Ullin company for every bushel of wheat it got from them, that it took the wheat and handled it on the market in due course of business, and that "it was innocent at all times of any of the matters and things set forth by the plaintiff."

District Judge Berry, sitting in the case, found for the plaintiff, from which order the defendant appealed.

Mrs. Frank Krank of Dickinson, is visiting here at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gilman.

Mrs. D. W. Casey, Mrs. Hubbard and Mrs. Geo. Saverly were entertained by Mrs. W. Kyes Thursday afternoon. Ice cream and cake was served and a pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by those present.

LEGIONAIRES ACTIVE BALLOONISTS

The American Legion promises to take a leading part in balloon activities of the future. The legion entry in the recent Indianapolis race (shown here) did not meet with much success. It was crushed flat at an altitude of 20,000 feet by converging storms as they passed over Franklin Springs, near Pittsburgh. Captain Charles E. McCullough (left) of Baltimore and Lieutenant Carlton F. Bond (right) narrowly escaped death. They threw everything overboard. The balloon landed in the branches of a tree.

SMALLEST CHURCH

Only Three People May Worship at Once

It still supplies churches all over the country with sacramental wine, though the monks have abandoned it as a permanent place of abode. They come from Covington to tend the vineyard and the little chapel is used now only infrequently.

Private Worship. The "smallest church" was constructed primarily as a place for private devotion and meditation. On its altar is a statue of the Mother of Christ, holding the dead form of her Son in her arms following the crucifixion.

The chapel is 10 feet long and 6 feet wide. It has a tiny steeple, rising about 20 feet from the ground. Small stained-glass windows pierce its vine-covered stone walls.

The chapel was built decades ago by Father Otto, one of the early monks, who was a stonemason. Special permission had to be obtained from the pope to construct it.

The attached farm, cared for by a family on shares, is the only bonded winery remaining in Kentucky. Its terraces, vines and cellars still produce wine of the finest quality, but only for sacramental use.

Changeable Taffeta. Changeable taffeta is used to make some of the smartest of the bouffant frocks. Ruffles and puffings of self-material are the most favored trimmings.

AT THE MOVIES

THE ELTINGE

The program at the Eltinge theater for Thursday includes the feature, "Straight from Paris" with Clara Kimball Young, Movie Chat with a Christie comedy, "Frimb Graz" for Friday and Saturday, Douglas MacLean comes in "A Man of Action" with Raymond who will be remembered as the Butler in "The Hotentot" as Douglas' fun-producing partner.

THE CAPITOL

To build up a military despotism, to hold a hundred and fifty million people in a cess, the Bolsheviks have secured every former comfort and joy of the Russian people. In the streets of Moscow, women beg for bread. In all of the cities, desolated and deserted, little children cry for milk. Bread lines and soup kitchens are the symbols of Sovietism. In the shadow of the Winter Palace, once the home of the haughty Romanoffs, the people scramble for free-wood dragged from the country upon sleighs and distributed to all who pledge allegiance to Bolshevism.

These scenes and more, all so characteristic of the unhappy Russia of today, are shown in "Red Russia Revealed," the Fox special reel which is to be shown for two days starting tonight at the Capitol theater. They explain vividly and dramatically the price that has been paid by a once great nation for her hesitancy in the terrible period following Russia's collapse in the World War.

BLUE TAFFETA

For a young girl with fair complexion and blue eyes, Dam Fashion recommends a bouffant dancing frock of baby blue taffeta combined with a frilled top of white organdie.

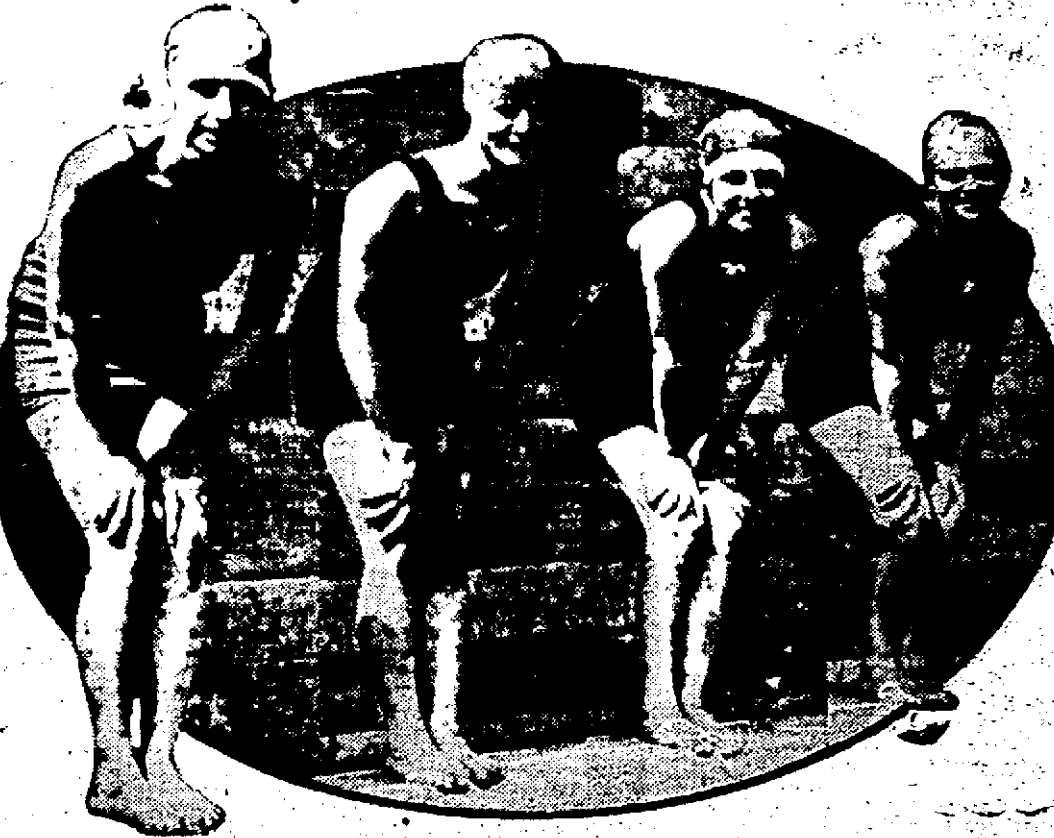

PRINTED CHIFFON

Printed chiffons in navy blue or black with white dots are made in to very tailored frocks and worn for business or shopping.

EMBROIDERED ORGANDIE

White embroidered organdie is very effective with black or navy blue taffeta.

On The Mountain Top

CLIMB the mountain—stand on the peak—and before you there unfolds a panorama extending as far as your eye can reach. Stay in the valley, and your view is restricted by the surrounding hills.

This newspaper—properly used—will guide you to the mountain top. Read it and your vision is enlarged. You get a bird's-eye view of world events. You glimpse the doings of the day.

Fail to use it, and your view is limited—you remain in ignorance not only of events at home and abroad, but of much that concerns you even more vitally—news of the very things that have to do with your personal, everyday life.

Some one might be selling a new, better and more economical food; or a utensil that would add immeasurably to your comfort and well-being; or some better material for shoes or clothing—but you would never know, because of your restricted view.

You may read every line of the news columns, but if you overlook the advertising, you are still living in the valley. You remain uninformed about many things you ought to know in order to live a happy, useful, profitable life in this age of progress.

THE DUMBBELL

About the dumbest thing in creation is the jellyfish. But in laboratories the scientists take this low form of life and perform an experiment that would interest you.

Anyone studying the jellyfish would decide that it has no brains at all. When it needs food, it automatically opens like a clam and stays open until something eatable drifts along into its "mouth." Then the contact of the bit of food causes a nerve reaction that makes the jellyfish close again—all by involuntary or automatic action, the same as when you touch a hot stove and immediately withdraw without pausing to think it over.

The scientists play a mean trick on the jellyfish. They put a chunk of yeast into its awaiting "jaws." Pronto, the jellyfish closes and starts digesting the yeast.

But the yeast begins expanding. It continues swelling until the jellyfish is on the verge of exploding.

Then suddenly the jellyfish opens up spasmodically and casts out the yeast. The scientists are convinced that this action is semi-voluntary—that the jellyfish opens instead of the yeast forcing it open.

The experiment demonstrates what amounts to the beginning of thought. For, until fooled with a cargo of yeast, the jellyfish apparently never before in history opened to disgorge.

According to the evolutionists, there was a time far back in the mists of history when our ancestors were as dumb as the jellyfish, when all action was involuntary, instinctive.

Some accident, such as the jellyfish getting a meal of yeast, probably started those ancient ancestors of ours along the line of voluntary action.

Will power began developing. So did memory. Then came a sense of curiosity, the desire to experiment—which is manifested by small children when they attempt to eat everything that comes their way and looks strange. You've had the experience of making baby spit out a button, pin, pebble or strange bug.

Will power, memory, curiosity, judgment and reasoning power are the foundations of human thought—of progress.

Can plant life think? You may believe so, if you have ever had a garden. Else what teaches the climbing plant, which has been creeping along the ground, to turn and fasten itself to the supporting twig you place for it in the soil? Surely, in this, are the faint rudiments of thought processes.

All this may be skating on thin scientific ice, but it's interesting to ponder. And so-called exact scientific knowledge is never definitely established, for principles accepted as truths frequently are exploded in later generations. In this direction, Einstein has upset a lot of "established" science.

We refer the question to the interesting organization, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Plant Life, which believes it is as cruel and painful to root out a hill of potatoes as to butcher a steer.

KIDDING?

Anthony Speiza, who weighs 385 lbs., left home in Newark, N. J., for a visit with his folks in Sicily. Coming back on the ocean liner, jesting passengers told him: "Haven't you heard the news? While you were away Congress passed a law—they're not letting anybody weighing over 300 enter the United States."

For a week Tony worked tooth-and-nail to take off 85 pounds. He starved himself. He ran up and down the ship's deck, in the hot sun, until he almost collapsed. At Ellis Island they told him he'd been hoaxed. He's happy now, somewhere in Ohio.

Don't set Tony down as an easy mark. He knows America, has lived here years. And maybe it's not as improbable as some of us think, that Congress might pass such a law. You never can tell what they'll do next, in Washington.

JAPAN

Japan is unable to sell to other countries as much as she is buying from them. In one month the "adverse trade balance" against her is close to 129 million dollars. That means, going in the hole at the rate of about one and a half billion dollars a year.

This little bit of statistics will have a lot to do with shaping Japanese diplomacy in the next few years. We Americans also are importing more than we are exporting. The flag follows trade.

PESTS

Caterpillars, marching in armies of millions, delay trains four hours in New Brunswick. Seventeen-year-locusts and tent caterpillars play havoc in states east of the Mississippi. The boll weevil is conducting business as usual. Wheeling, W. Va., telegraphs that swarms of strange beetles are destroying nearby orchards, impervious to boiling water and poison, eating an occasional hen. Not to mention cut worms, borers, etc.

It's a great year for the insects, who may inherit the earth from us. Why not stop fighting and stealing from each other long enough to battle the insect pests and other common enemies?

CHANGE

Your success or failure may depend on the way your shake hands, dress or eat, warns Rev. Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas of Akron, Ohio.

Dressing and eating have to do with appearances. They create the first impression and reveal our degree of cleanliness, orderliness and common sense. The handshake expresses character.

We are made or broken by the simple things of life—the "trifling" details—as much as by our abilities. Make a good impression, and we usually get more than a chance or try-out. Remember, the best play is not apt to please the audience if it is staged poorly. Success requires a certain sense of the dramatic—not ranting and forced acting, but the simple touches that please.

A good disposition, however, is a necessary adjunct of ability.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

The land on the other side of the ocean is not so certain as it seems. People you never would believe could happen anywhere. Not even in fairy tale books.

Long before the twins got to Sneezetown with Mister Sky Bow, they heard a loud a-cnooing and louder nose blowing that sounded like the Fourth of July. The sneezing sounded like whizzers and the nose blowing sounded like firecrackers.

When they finally got near to Sneezetown, they could hardly see the place for the number of pocket handkerchiefs drying on the clothes line.

But soon a Sneezey saw them and called a greeting. "Hello!" he shouted. "Come and have some snuff and get a nice red nose. No one in Sneezetown is fashionable unless he has a red nose. A-choo! Oh, how lovely! A-choo! A-choo! A-choo, choo, choo!"

"My, you sound like a train!" said Nick.

The Sneezey whirled around three times then stopped to sneeze again before he answered.

"Train nothing! We sound like the finest kind of automobiles. Besides every sneeze takes away an outer cobweb off our brains. Pardon me! Have you cobwebs on your brains?"

Nancy laughed. "The teacher says so when we can't get our lessons," she answered.

"Then snuff's what you need," shouted the Sneezey and before anyone could stop him he opened the lid of his snuff box and blew in.

Instantly Nancy and Nick and Mister Sky Bow were sneezing like good fellows.

"That's the way!" cried the Sneezey. "Now you've got fine red noses and the cobwebs are all gone. I'll bet you can get your lessons now."

"Sky Bow, 'Never to bring them to Sneezetown again.'"

LETTER FROM LESLIE PRESCOTT TO LESLIE PRESCOTT, CONTINUED.

There is one thing for which I have to thank Jack's mother. I do get so much comfort out of you, dear little Marquise, who only beside myself may hold the key to this secret drawer. I wonder how Mrs. Prescott found it in her heart to part with this beautiful desk.

Now for a great secret. I have found out that Ruth Ellington's heart has not grown cold. It has merely grown for itself a kind of prickly cocoon, something that will protect its warmth and youth from the knowledge of the world.

After we had tried on nearly every hat in town and had a most beautiful time, I invited Ruth—I have begun to call her Ruth by this time—to go with me to the nearest tea place in town.

Before we went in, we both doted ourselves up a little in the ladies' dressing room and I knew the same thought came to each of us as we entered. We were quite the best looking women in the room.

"Society women, Leslie," said Ruth, "always look so bored."

I did not have the heart to tell her that the night before I thought she looked bored to death, for today she was bright and happy like a gay little butterfly floating about the flowers.

I could not help wondering just what made her appear so differently when her husband was with her.

"Perhaps," she continued, "it is because most women who are rich enough to lunch and tea at a place like this are society women, and men always seem to think we are bored with each other. Always one feels rather sorry when one sees a group of women dining without a man and one has no such ideas about a group of men. And yet I feel today that women can enjoy each other and do enjoy each other more than men enjoy each other."

Before I thought, dear little Marquise, I said, "Yes, you are having a better time today than you had last night, aren't you Ruth?"

Ruth blushed and then she owned up honestly. "I am. I have reached a place where I am not myself in Harry's company. I wonder if you have been married long enough, Leslie, to have entered the making-over process."

"What do you mean by that, Ruth? Do all married women have to be made over?"

"If you don't know," she answered ambiguously, "you haven't entered it yet."

"Leslie, I was the gayest girl in my set, always laughing, always dancing and if the truth must be known, always conquering more or less. That was the girl my husband, Harry Ellington, fell in love with and married."

"Immediately he started to make me over. The first thing he found out was that I smiled too much. 'A woman who is always laughing when she talks with other men is apt to be misunderstood,' he said."

"When he insisted that his wife should not dance the new dances with other men and, as he did not care very much about dancing himself, I found myself sitting on the sidelines with the dowagers and women old enough to be my mother."

"I have almost ceased to go out with the young people that I used to go with and the tragedy of it all is that Harry doesn't like me at all, now that I am made over. Yet he doesn't know why he doesn't like me. He makes all sorts of excuses to go out without me.

"He wants the same joyous irresponsible fun that we used to have together, the joy he will not let me give him. So he goes to some other girl to get it, never dreaming that perhaps there might be some man just over there in the office who might tell me that he would rather love me in his arms than worship me on a pedestal."

MANDAN NEWS

Pay Tribute to Mandan Pioneer

A large group of pioneers of Mandan, many of them residents of the city for 30 or 40 years, served as active and honorary pall-bearers for James H. McGillicie who passed away Monday morning, at the funeral service held for him this morning at St. Joseph's Catholic church.

As a mark of respect for the deceased who was one of the leading business men in Mandan Mayor H. L. Henke issued a proclamation reading: "We, the city of Mandan, do hereby declare that James H. McGillicie, who passed away Monday morning, at the funeral service held for him this morning at St. Joseph's Catholic church, was a pioneer of Mandan and a citizen of Mandan during the funeral service."

The active pallbearers were: Charles McDonald, John F. Sullivan, Harry Center, Joseph P. Hess, R. B. O'Rourke, A. Gruenfelder. The honorary pallbearers were: William Simpson, Chas. Wyman, D. R. Taylor, A. Nichols, M. L. Connolly, Wm. A. Laban, James Melarvie, John Foran, Dr. V. J. La Rose, of Bismarck, L. N. Cary, Mike Tobin, James E. Campbell, A. Lanterman, Chas. F. O'Rourke.

Plans and specifications for the paving of East Main street from the end of the present paving to the dike to conform with the federal aid paving project which is to be carried out this summer will be presented at the meeting of the board of city commissioners today.

Various phases of paving will be discussed in detail at the meeting. The board has also asked that plans for the paving of the cross streets between Collins and Sixth avenue N. W. be presented.

August Witting, farmer residing near Judson, who was found guilty of assault and battery following a three-hour hearing before Justice G. L. Olson was fined $23.50.

Elmer Hobbins, a neighbor, who was the complaining witness. He asserted that Witting and others had threatened him and that Witting attacked him.

Mrs. Walter G. Renden, Mrs. Earle O'reut, and Mrs. G. L. Olson were elected local delegates of the Mandan Legion Auxiliary at a meeting Monday evening called to form plans for the state convention which is to be held here Sept. 5 and 6. Alternates were Mrs. Herman Leonard, and Mrs. Fred McKendry.

Dr. and Mrs. John Everett of St. Paul who have been spending a couple of days here at the home of Dr. Everett's sister, Mrs. E. R. Lanterman, left Monday for Brainerd, Minn., where they will spend a week with friends and relatives. Dr. Everett is assistant surgeon at the N. P. hospital in St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Johnson and daughter left Monday for Grygla, Minn., where they will spend a couple of weeks with relatives.

head went through his skull like butter.

The gloaming had long thickened to darkness when I went my way and laid the trail through Two Bridges, Postbridge and Ashburton to Brisham. Once only was I bothered—at the gate across the road by Brisham coast-guard station, but I lifted the motor bicycle over it and presently ascended to the cliffs of Berry Head. Fate favored me in details, for, despite the hour, there were witnesses to every step of the route.

On the cliff I emptied my sack, cast its stuffing to the winds, fastened my handbag to the bicycle, thrust the blood-stained sack into a rabbit hole, where it could not fail to be discovered, and then returned to Robert Redmayne's lodging at Paignton. There the telegram had already been sent informing the landlady of his return that night.

I changed into the serge suit, cap and brown shoes of Doria and packed Redmayne's clothes, tweeds and showy waistcoat, boots and stockings into my handbag with the wig and mustaches and my weapon.

I walked to Newton Abbot and reached the town before six o'clock. At the railway station I breakfasted and presently took a train to Dartmouth. Before noon I reached "Crow's Nest" and made acquaintance with Bendigo Redmayne.

But he had little leisure for me at this moment, for there had already come news from his niece of the mysterious fatality on Dartmoor.

Needless to say that my thoughts were now entirely devoted to my wife and I longed for her first communication. Our briefest separation caused me pain, for our souls were as one and we had not been parted, save for my visit to Southampton, since our marriage day.

It was her exquisite thought to involve the man from Scotland Yard. When I sought to destroy him on Grante and believed that I had done so, a man displayed an ingenuity for which I did not give him credit and unconsciously laid the foundations of subsequent disaster.

The letter which Bendigo Redmayne received, and supposed had come from his brother at Plymouth, was posted by Jenny on her journey to "Crow's Nest." We had written it a week earlier and studied her uncle's indifferent penmanship very carefully before doing so.

We proposed to let six months pass before the death of Bendigo Redmayne, and we were already contemplating details and considering how best to bring his brother back upon the stage for the purpose of Ben's destruction, when Mark Brendon blundered in upon us once again.

I swiftly brought Robert Redmayne to life; and though, with more leisure, for refinements, I should not have clothed him in his old attire, yet that crude detail possessed a value of its own and certainly served to deceive Brendon.

Of subsequent events, most are so familiar that there is no need to retrace them.

My tears fall when I think of my incomparable Jenny and her astounding mastery of miniature at "Crow's Nest"—her finesse and exquisite touch, her kittenlike delicacy, her cat-like swiftness and sureness. The two things involved were as children in her hands, and I and I were of the same spirit, kneaded into our clay!

I say that accident made a radical alteration of design vital, for I had intended, on the night when Robert Redmayne would come and see Bendigo, to murder the old sailor in his tower room and remove him before morning with my own hands. On his death was intended, during my previous conversation with him touching Jenny, I had perceived, by his clumsy glances and evidence of anxiety, that somebody else was in the tower room—unseen.

There was but one hiding place and but one man likely to occupy it. I did not indicate that I had discovered the secret and was not the detective who gave himself away; but, once alive to his presence, I swiftly marked a flash of light at one of the little ventilation holes in the cupboard and perceived that our sleuth stood hid within it.

Having conveyed the old sailor to the cave, where, on my recent run up the coast after dropping Brendon, I had already looked in and lighted the lamp, I landed behind him and, as his foot touched the shore the pole-axe fell. He was dead in an instant and five minutes later his blood ran upon the sand.

Once more my amazing wife and I parted for a brief period and then I had the joy of introducing her to the remainder of our task awaiting us.

And now for Italy. It is true that in my early manhood I had suffered a sad accident at Naples, the secret of which was known to my mother and myself alone. I therefore entertained some grudge against her country; but the fact at no time lessened my love for the south.

Songs Feature of Rotary Luncheon Today at McKenzie

A feature of the Rotary luncheon today was the singing of "Yes—We Have No Bananas," by "Bob" Simpson, Carl Nelson, P. R. Fields, Dr. Eric P. Quinn, Dr. V. J. La Rose, and Bert Finney. President H. J. Duemeland directed the singing of the popular song while each of the vocalists delighted the forty-nine Rotarians at the luncheon with their individualistic interpretation of the song.

L. S. Craswell presided at the meeting, and in the absence of the song leaders, George Humphries and Hank Halverson, A. F. Bradley, secretary of the Association of Commerce lead the musical part of the program.

Rev. W. J. Hutchinson of Grand Forks, formerly rector of the McCabe Methodist church, was the speaker of the day. He spoke on Rotary ideals and expressed his approval of the ideals for which Rotary was striving.

Bert Finney in behalf of the Rotarians delivered a farewell address, expressing the regret felt by the Rotary members for the approaching departure of Charles Anderson who is leaving in the near future for California. He presented Mr. Anderson with a fine pipe as a token of remembrance from his friends.

L. Bell continued his report of the St. Louis International Rotary meeting for fifteen minutes. Roy Erickson and L. S. Craswell had charge of the luncheon.

Among the guests were Rev. Burns who has charge of the services at the Presbyterian church during the illness of Rev. H. S. Postlethwaite and Rotarian Hanson of Jamestown.

RETURN FROM LAKES

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Henry Holst and daughter, Miss Esther who have been spending two weeks at Mason Bay, near Detroit, Minn., returned to their home yesterday. While at the lakes Mrs. T. Dewhurst and son, Richard of Sullwater, Minn., former residents of Bismarck visited with the Holsts and other friends from Bismarck. Rev. Dewhurst, rector of St. George's Episcopal church for many years, arrived in the neighborhood of the Stillwater, Minn., during the past winter. While they like their new home Mrs. Dewhurst and Richard both said they missed their old friends in their new home.

GUESTS AT GORBEL HOME

Mr. and Mrs. C. S. James of Sibley, Ia., parents of Mrs. E. J. Gobel have arrived to spend the summer at the Gobel home. They made the trip by automobile. At the home of Mrs. Gobel, they were joined by Walter James and daughter, Miss Vera who accompanied them to Bismarck.

Mr. C. S. James who was in the city two years ago and who is deeply interested in civic affairs, expressed amazement at the improvements and growth which he observed in Bismarck since he was here.

TO CHICAGO ALONE FOR FOURTH TIME

Robert L. Reid, son of Mr. G. E. Bailey of 501 Fourth street, left today for Chicago, Ill., to make his home with his foster father, Robert Reid, Sr. This is the third time that Robert, who is now six years old, has made the trip to Chicago alone, the first trip being taken when he was three years of age. He will wear a tag stating the place of his destination. Robert will be remembered as Robert Reddy formerly.

OVER $7500.00 to HOUSEWIVES for Recipes!

WE will buy not less than 101 Recipes or suggestions for new uses of Grape-Nuts, paying $50.00 for each one accepted.

And in addition—

Good Housekeeping Institute, conducted by Good Housekeeping Magazine, will decide an award of $2500.00 for the best four of the 101 new Grape-Nuts Recipes, so purchased:

- $1,000.00 for the 1st selection
- $750.00 for the 2nd selection
- $500.00 for the 3rd selection
- $250.00 for the 4th selection

The conditions of this remarkable offer are so simple and fair that every housewife in the United States has an opportunity to share in its benefits.

There Is No Other Food Like Grape-Nuts

Practically everybody knows Grape-Nuts as a delicious, nourishing breakfast food. And while it is common knowledge that Grape-Nuts with milk or cream is a complete food, many housewives do not know of the appetizing and economical dishes that can be prepared with Grape-Nuts.

Grape-Nuts lends itself, we believe, to more uses than any other cereal.

Thousands of women are finding varied uses for Grape-Nuts in their home cooking; and thousands of others would be glad to learn that

Grape-Nuts adds distinctive flavor and nutritive qualities to a great variety of dishes.

So the thought back of our offer of over $7500.00 for Grape-Nuts Recipes is to bring out the new ways in which this wonderful food is adding to the health and pleasure of people everywhere.

Ask your grocer, or write to Dept. B, Postum Cereal Co., Inc., Battle Creek, Mich., for details of the offer of over $7500.00 for New Grape-Nuts Recipes, which must be mailed by August 31, 1923.

Sold by Grocers everywhere!

Songs Feature of Rotary Luncheon Today at McKenzie

A feature of the Rotary luncheon today was the singing of "Yes—We Have No Bananas," by "Bob" Simpson, Carl Nelson, P. E. Fields, Dr. Eric P. Quinn, Dr. V. J. La Rose, and Bud Finney. President H. J. Duemmel directed the singing of the popular song while each of the vocalists delighted the forty-nine Rotarians at the luncheon with their individualistic interpretation of the song.

L. S. Craswell presided at the meeting, and in the absence of the song leaders, George Hauspach and Hank Halverson, A. F. Bradley, secretary of the Association of Commerce, led the musical part of the program.

Rev. W. J. Hutchinson of Grand Forks, formerly rector of the McCabe Methodist church, was the speaker of the day. He spoke on Rotary ideals and expressed his approval of the ideals for which Rotary was striving.

Burt Finney in behalf of the Rotarians delivered a farewell address, expressing the regret felt by the Rotary members for the approaching departure of Charles Anderson who is leaving in the near future for California. He presented Mr. Anderson with a fine pipe as a token of remembrance from his friends.

J. L. Bell continued his report of the St. Louis International Rotary meeting for fifteen minutes. Roy Benham and L. S. Craswell had charge of the luncheon.

Among the guests were Rev. Burns who has charge of the services at the Presbyterian church during the illness of Rev. H. S. Potholowite and Rotarian Hanson of Jamestown.

The irate neighbor is under surveillance and a rooster, the alleged cause of the affair, will crow no more. Police this morning found it with its neck rung, lying beside Griffith's body.

Griffith is said by neighbors to have complained about the crowing of Ferguson's rooster, which awakened him from his sleep and is alleged to have said he "would stop the crowing if the rooster was not disposed of."

This morning, it is thought, he set out to make good his threat. Ferguson told police he heard a noise in the chicken coop, took a revolver and went to the place where he found Griffith with the body of the rooster. He ordered Griffith to throw up his hands and the command being refused fired two shots at him, the second passing through the man's heart. Ferguson is not arrested and officials state they are undecided as to what action will be taken.

This morning, it is thought, he set out to make good his threat. Ferguson told police he heard a noise in the chicken coop, took a revolver and went to the place where he found Griffith with the body of the rooster. He ordered Griffith to throw up his hands and the command being refused fired two shots at him, the second passing through the man's heart. Ferguson is not arrested and officials state they are undecided as to what action will be taken.

Griffith is said by neighbors to have complained about the crowing of Ferguson's rooster, which awakened him from his sleep and is alleged to have said he "would stop the crowing if the rooster was not disposed of."

JEALOUSY IS SHOOTING CAUSE

One Victim Dead, Another Is Near Death in Chicago Shooting

Chicago, July 18.—His second victim near death in a hospital here, police today sought Amoreto Gilbert, a tailor, said by them to have been the man who last night shot and killed Carl Salerno, 32, with whose wife police say, he eloped, and wounded Charles Goetz, into whose automobile he sought escape.

Mrs. Salerno told police her husband had caused the arrest of herself and Gilbert, who boarded with them and that she had left because of the jealousy and abuse of her husband.

THE DUMBBELL
About the dumbest thing in creation is the jellyfish. But in laboratories the scientists take this low form of life and perform an experiment that would interest you.
Anyone studying the jellyfish would decide that it has no brains at all. When it needs food, it automatically opens like a clam and stays open until something eatable drifts along into its "mouth." Then the contact of the bit of food causes a nerve reaction that makes the jellyfish close again—all by involuntary or automatic action, the same as when you touch a hot stove and immediately withdraw without pausing to think it over.

The scientists play a mean trick on the jellyfish. They put a chunk of yeast into its awaiting "jaws." Pronto, the jellyfish closes and starts digesting the yeast.
But the yeast begins expanding. It continues swelling until the jellyfish is on the verge of exploding.
Then suddenly the jellyfish opens up spasmodically and casts out the yeast. The scientists are convinced that this action is semi-voluntary—that the jellyfish opens instead of the yeast forcing it open.

The experiment demonstrates what amounts to the beginning of thought. For, until fooled with a cargo of yeast, the jellyfish apparently never before in history opened to disgorge.

According to the evolutionists, there was a time far back in the mists of history when our ancestors were as dumb as the jellyfish, when all action was involuntary, instinctive. Some accident, such as the jellyfish getting a meal of yeast, probably started those ancient ancestors of ours along the line of voluntary action.

Will power began developing. So did memory. Then came a sense of curiosity, the desire to experiment—which is manifested by small children when they attempt to eat everything that comes their way and looks strange. You've had the experience of making baby spit out a button, pin, pebble or strange bug.

Will power, memory, curiosity, judgment and reasoning power are the foundations of human thought—of progress.

Can plant life think? You may believe so, if you have ever had a garden. Else what teaches the climbing plant, which has been creeping along the ground, to turn and fasten itself to the supporting twig you place for it in the soil? Surely, in this, are the faint rudiments of thought processes. All this may be skating on thin scientific ice, but it's interesting to ponder. And so-called exact scientific knowledge is never definitely established, for principles accepted as truths frequently are exploded in later generations. In this direction, Einstein has upset a lot of "established" science.
We refer the question to the interesting organization, the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Plant Life, which believes it is as cruel and painful to root out a hill of potatoes as to butcher a steer.

KIDDING?
Anthony Speiza, who weighs 385 lbs., left home in Newark, N. J., for a visit with his folks in Sicily. Coming back on the ocean liner, jesting passengers told him: "Haven't you heard the news? While you were away Congress passed a law—they're not letting anybody weighing over 300 enter the United States."

For a week Tony worked tooth-and-nail to take off 85 pounds. He starved himself. He ran up and down the ship's deck, in the hot sun, until he almost collapsed. At Ellis Island they told him he'd been hoaxed. He's happy now, somewhere in Ohio.

Don't set Tony down as an easy mark. He knows America, has lived here years. And maybe it's not as improbable as some of us think, that Congress might pass such a law. You never can tell what they'll do next, in Washington.

JAPAN
Japan is unable to sell to other countries as much as she is buying from them. In one month the "adverse trade balance" against her is close to 129 million dollars. That means, going in the hole at the rate of about one and a half billion dollars a year.

This little bit of statistics will have a lot to do with shaping Japanese diplomacy in the next few years. We Americans also are importing more than we are exporting. The flag follows trade.

PESTS
Caterpillars, marching in armies of millions, delay trains four hours in New Brunswick. Seventeen-year locusts and tent caterpillars play havoc in states east of the Mississippi. The boll weevil is conducting business as usual. Wheeling, W. Va., telegraphs that swarms of strange beetles are destroying nearby orchards, impervious to boiling water and poison, eating an occasional hen. Not to mention cut worms, borers, etc.

It's a great year for the insects, who may inherit the earth from us. Why not stop fighting and stealing from each other long enough to battle the insect pests and other common enemies?

CHANGE
Your success or failure may depend on the way you shake hands, dress or eat, warns Rev. Dr. Lloyd C. Douglas of Akron, Ohio.
Dressing and eating have to do with appearances. They create the first impression and reveal our degree of cleanliness, orderliness and common sense. The handshake expresses character.
We are made or broken by the simple things of life—the "trifling" details—as much as by our abilities. Make a good impression and we usually get more than a chance or try-out. Remember, the best play is not apt to please the audience if it is staged poorly. Success requires a certain sense of the dramatic—not ranting and forced acting, but the simple touches that please.
A good disposition atones for many defects of ability.

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Roberts Barton

The land on the other side of the Rainbow door certainly was queer. People you never would believe could happen anywhere. Not even in fairy tale books.
Long before the Twins got to Sneezetown with Mister Sky Bow, they heard a loud a-croaking and louder nose blowing that sounded like the Fourth of July. The sneezing sounded like whizzers and the nose blowing sounded like firecrackers.

When they finally got near to Sneezetown, they could hardly see the place for the number of pocket handkerchiefs drying on the clothes line.
But soon a Sneezey saw them and called a greeting, "Hello!" he shouted. "Come and have some snuff and get a nice red nose. No one in Sneezetown is fashionable unless he has a red nose. A-choo! Oh, how lovely! A-choo! A-choo! A-choo, choo, choo!"
"My, you sound like a train!" said Nick.
The Sneezey whirled around three times then stopped to sneeze again before he answered.
"I can't sneeze!" We sound like the finest kind of automobiles. Besides every sneeze takes away another cobweb of our brains. Pardon me! Have you cobwebs on your brains?"
Nancy laughed. "The teacher says so when we can't get our lessons," she answered.
"Then snuff's what you need," shouted the Sneezey and before anyone could stop him he opened the lid of his snuff box and blew in. Instantly Nancy and Nick and Mister Sky Bow were sneezing like good fellows.

"That's the way!" cried the Sneezey. "Now you've got fine red noses and the cobwebs are all gone. I'll bet you can get your lessons now."
"One lesson I've got," said Mister Sky Bow. "Never to bring them to Sneezetown again."

There is one thing for which I am eternally grateful to you, dear little Marquise, who only beside myself may hold the key to this secret drawer. I wonder how Mrs. Prescott found it in her heart to part with this beautiful desk.
Now for a great secret! I have found out that Ruth Ellington's heart has not grown cold. It has merely grown for itself a kind of prickly cocoon, something that will protect its warmth and youth from the knowledge of the world.
Ruth is in town and had a most beautiful time. I invited Ruth—I have begun to call her Ruth by this time—to go with me to the "arrest" tea place in town.
Before we went in, we both doted ourselves up a little in the ladies' dressing room and I knew the same thought came to each of us as we ventured. We were quite the best looking women in the room.
"Society women, Leslie," said Ruth, "always look so bored."
I did not have the heart to tell her that the night before I thought she looked bored to death, for today she was bright and happy like a gay little butterfly floating about the flowers.
I could not help wondering just what made her appear so differently when her husband was with her.
"Perhaps," she continued, "it is because no women who are rich enough to lunch and tea at a place like this are society women. They are always seem to think we are bored with each other. Always one feels rather sorry when one sees a group of women dining without a man and no has no such ideas about a group of men. And yet I feel today that I enjoy each other more than men enjoy each other."
Before I thought, dear little Marquise, I said, "Yes, you are having a better time today than you had last night, aren't you Ruth?"
Ruth blushed and then she owned up honestly, "I am. I have reached a place where I am not myself in Harry's company. I wonder, if you have been married long enough, Leslie, to have entered the making-over process."
"What do you mean by that, Ruth?"
"If you don't know," she answered ambiguously, "you haven't entered it yet."
"Leslie, I was the gayest girl in my set, always laughing, always dancing and if the truth must be known, always coquetting more or less. That was the girl my husband, Harry Ellington, fell in love with and married."
"Immediately he started to make me over. The first thing he found out was that I smiled too much. 'A woman who is always laughing when she talks with other men is apt to be misunderstood,' he said. 'Then he insisted that his wife should not dance the new dances with other men and, as he did not care very much about dancing himself, I found myself sitting on the sidelines with the dowagers and women old enough to be my mother. 'If I have almost ceased to go out with the young people that I used to go with and the tragedy of it all is that Harry doesn't like me at all, now that I am made over. Yet he doesn't know why he doesn't like me. He makes all sorts of excuses to go out without me. 'He wants the same joyous irresponsible fun that we used to have together, the joy he will not let me give him. So he goes to some other girl to get it, never dreaming that perhaps there might be some man just over there in the office who might tell me that he would rather love me in his arms than worship me on a pedestal.'"

Pay Tribute to Mandan Pioneer

A large group of pioneers of Mandan, many of them residents of the city for 30 or 40 years, served as active and honorary pallbearers for James H. McMillan who passed away Monday morning, at the funeral service held for him this morning at St. Joseph's Catholic church.

As a mark of respect for the deceased who was one of the leading business men in Mandan Mayor H. L. Henke issued a proclamation requesting all offices and business houses in Mandan close during the funeral service.
The active pallbearers were: Charles McDonald, John F. Sullivan, Harry Center, Joseph P. Hess, R. B. O'Rourke, A. Gruenfelder. The honorary pallbearers were: William Simpson, Chas. Wyman, D. R. Taylor, A. Nichols, M. L. Connolly, Wm. A. Laban, James Melarive, John Foran, Dr. V. J. La Rose, of Bismarck, L. N. Curry, Mike Tobin, James E. Campbell, A. Lanterman, Chas. P. O'Rourke.

Plans and specifications for the paving of East Main street from the end of the present paving to the city limits, which is to be carried out this summer will be presented at the meeting of the board of city commissioners today.
Various phases of paving will be discussed in detail at the meeting. The board has also asked that plans for the paving of the cross streets between Collins and Sixth avenue N. W. be presented.

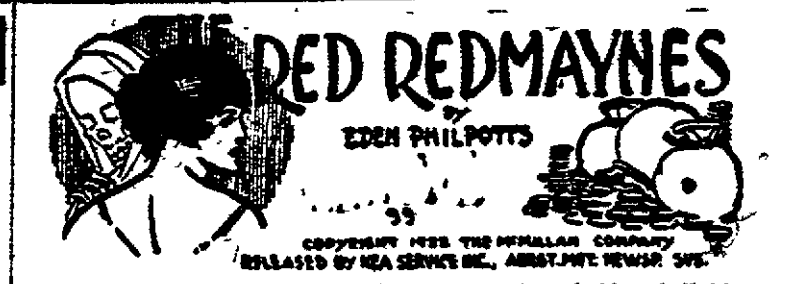

August Witting, farmer residing near Judson, who was found guilty of assault and battery following a three-hour hearing before Justice G. L. Olson was fined $23.50.
Elmer Hohbein, a neighbor, was the complaining witness. He asserted that Witting and others had threatened him and that Witting attacked him.

Mrs. Walter G. Rendon, Mrs. Earle Orent, and Mrs. C. L. Olson were elected local delegates of the Mandan Legion Auxiliary at a meeting Monday evening called to form plans for the state convention which is to be held here Sept. 5 and 6. Alternates were Mrs. Herman Leonard, and Mrs. Fred McKendry.

Dr. and Mrs. John Everett of St. Paul who have been spending a couple of days here at the home of Dr. Everett's sister, Mrs. E. R. Lanterman, left Monday for Brainerd, Minn., where they will spend a week with friends and relatives. Dr. Everett is assistant surgeon at the N. P. hospital in St. Paul.

Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Johnson and daughter left Monday for Grylls, Minn., where they will spend a couple of weeks with relatives.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
Mark Brendon, criminal investigator, in engaged by Jenny to solve the mystery of the disappearance of her husband, Michael. Penden is last seen in the company of Jenny's uncle, Robert Redmayne. Robert goes into hiding and sends for his brother Bendigo to meet him in a secret cave. Both men disappear and the case shows evidence of a terrible struggle.
Jenny marries Giuseppe Doris, who works for her uncle, Bendigo. They go to live in Italy where Jenny's uncle Albert Redmayne lives. Peter Gauss, famous American detective, assists Brendon in the investigation. When Doris is arrested Jenny is killed by the bullet intended for her husband when she throws herself in front of him to save his life.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
Her grandfather still lived, when first I met her, and the extent or disposition of his wealth seldom entered our calculations.
But a year passed. Jenny was ready to wed me and begin life as my twin star; while I longed for her with a great longing. The situation cleared; her grandfather died; she would presently be the possessor of ample means and I already enjoyed an income from the business of Penden and Treararrow. The end of the war and the sense of death suddenly pronounced by that event upon the brothers Redmayne. Their own folly and lack of vision were alone responsible. I did not argue with them; it was enough that Jenny swiftly awakened to even a bitterer hatred and a deeper fury of resentment than myself. They had roused the sleeping tempest and our lightning now became only a question of time.
I evaded active service with a heart drug, as did some thousands of other intelligent men. I kept a whole skin, stopped at home and received for my share the Order of the British Empire instead of a nameless grave. It was easy enough. Meantime we volunteered and our record of service at Princetown was made as fast as possible.

Already, my future intention was coloring my life. I grew a beard, wore glasses and pretended delicacy of constitution; for after the war was done I intended murdering three men, and I proposed to do so in such a manner that society would find it impossible to associate me with the crimes.
We pretended an affection for Dartmoor. As an example of our far-reaching methods I may relate how we returned to the wilderness after the war was done and actually began to build a bungalow upon it, which, needless to say, we never had the least intention of occupying.
I had designed first to destroy Bendigo and Albert Redmayne, who had never seen me, and finally deal with my old friend, Robert; but it was he who came at the critical moment as a lamb to the slaughter and inspired the superb conception now familiar to the civilized world.

The time was ripe to pluck these men who had insulted and outraged me; and when Bendigo Redmayne advertised for a motor boatman, the challenge was accepted. I forged certain foreign letters of commendation. He liked Italians, from experience of them aboard ship, and he appreciated my letter and my imaginary war record.
What was the next step? An entreaty from Jenny that I should shave my beard! She begged again and again and appealed to Robert, who supported her. I withstood them until the day of his destruction. Upon that morning I appeared without it and they congratulated me. On one occasion, when my wife rode down to Plymouth with her uncle on his motor bicycle, she left him to do some shopping, and, visiting Barnell's the theatrical costume, she purchased a red wig for a woman. At home again she transferred it into a red wig for a man. Meantime I had made a pair of large mustaches, helping myself when Mrs. Gerry, her landlady, was out of the way to hair from the brush of one of her stuffed foxes, whose color exactly resembled the rufous adornments of Robert Redmayne.
When we started on my motor cycle, after tea, to do some work at the bungalow, I took a handbag containing my costume as Giuseppe Doris—a plain, blue serge suit, coat, waistcoat and trousers and yachtman's cap. I also carried a tool—the little instrument with which I murdered the three Redmaynes. It resembled the head of a butcher's poleaxe, of great weight with the working end sharpened. I made it in a forge at Southampton and it lies today under the waters of Coma.
My bag I had taken on previous occasions to the quarry, with a bottle of whisky and glasses, so Robert thought it not strange that I should do so again.
We started for Fogginton and it was still broad daylight when we got there. I had already studied the quarry and determined on Robert Redmayne's resting place. You will find him—and the suit of clothes I was wearing that evening—in the moraine, where it opens fanwise from the cliff above and spreads into the bottom beneath.
Arrived at the bungalow, Robert's first demand was a bath in the quarry pool. To this I had accustomed him and we stripped and swam for ten minutes. When we returned from the pool into the shelter of the bungalow it was a naked man I smote and dropped with one blow my formidable weapon. His back was turned and the pole-axe ne received, and supposed had come from his brother at Plymouth, was sooted by Jenny on her journey to "Crow's Nest." We had written it together a week earlier and studied her uncle's indifferent penmanship very carefully before doing so.

We proposed to let six months pass before the death of Bendigo Redmayne, and we were already contemplating details and considering how best to bring his brother back upon the stage for the purpose of his destruction. When Mrs. Brendon blundered in upon us once again, I swiftly brought Robert Redmayne to life; and though, with more leisure for refinements, I should not have clothed him in his old attire, yet that crude detail possessed a value of its own and certainly served to deceive Brendon.

Of subsequent events, most are so familiar that there is no need to retrace them.
My tears fall when I think of my incoachable Jenny and her astounding mastery of minutiae at "Crow's Nest." Her finesse and exactness, touch, her catlike delicacy, her catlike swiftness and sureness. The two beings involved were as children in her hands. Oh, precious phoenix of a woman, oh, and I were of the same spirit, kneaded into our clay!
I say that accident made a radical alteration of design vital, for I had intended, on the night when Robert Redmayne would come and see Bendigo, to murder the old sailor in his tower room and remove him before morning with my wife's assistance. But the victim postponed his own destruction, for upon the night when his death was intended, during my previous conversation with him, touching Jenny, I had perceived, by his glances and evidence of anxiety that somebody else was in the tower room unseen.

There was but one hiding place and but one man likely to occupy it. I did not indicate that I had discovered the secret and it was not the detective who gave himself away; but, once alive to his presence, I swiftly marked a flash of light at one of the little ventilation holes in the cupboard and perceived that our sleuth stood hid within it.
Having conveyed the old sailor to the cave, where, on my recent run up the coast after dropping Brendon, I had already looked in and lighted the lamp, I landed behind him and, as his foot touched the shore the pole-axe fell. He was dead in an instant and five minutes later his blood ran upon the sand.
Once more my amazing wife and I parted for a brief period and then I had the joy of introducing her to Italy, where the remainder of our task awaited us.
And now for Italy. It is true that in my early manhood I had suffered a sad accident at Naples, the secret of which was known to my mother and myself alone. I therefore entertained some grudge against her country; but the fact at no time lessened my love for the south.

CARL MAYS IS BATTED HARD IN CLEVELAND

Yankee Submarine Hurler Fails to Stop Tris Speaker's Men in Game

Chicago, July 18.—Carl Mays, the clever underhand pitcher for the New York Yankees, stood up on the mound in Cleveland yesterday and tossed the ball to the Indians, who returned the compliment by knocking it all over the adjacent countryside for 13 runs and 25 hits, which were good for 27 bases. The Yankees registered zero in the run column.

The St. Louis Giants, playing on the home grounds, made a fitting finish to their series of five straight victories over the Red Sox, winning 10 to 1. Danforth struck out 10 of the Bostonians.

In Boston Adolpho Luque, Cincinnati's Cuban hurler, scored his 14th and 15th victories, when he took both games of a double-header away from the home team, 4 to 3, and 9 to 5. He pitched six innings of the first game and all of the second.

In Chicago the Philadelphia Americans were unable to find the ball and the Westerners won the final game of the series, 8 to 1, a homer by Hauser saving the visitors from a shutout.

The Tigers defeated Washington in Detroit, 4 to 2, with Rice's stick work featuring the play. He knocked a one, a two and a three-bagger in four times at bat, and scored twice.

The Giants signed up a new base on life by trimming the Chicago Cubs, 7 to 2.

The Brooklyn Robins, working on their own grounds, won the deciding game of the series with the Pirates in a one-inning rally, 6 to 2, making all their runs in the fourth.

St. Louis won the final game of the series with Philadelphia in the latter's home when Fred Toney out-pitched Jimmy Rine in 10 innings, for a final score of 2 to 1.

Billy Evans Says

The day of the fast ball pitcher has passed. No longer can the twirler with blinding speed alone make the grade in the majors.

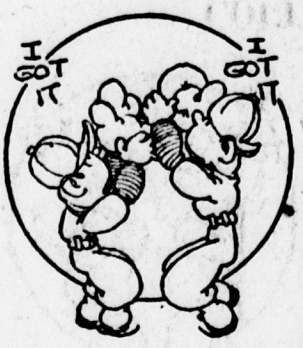

Not so many years ago speed was considered the greatest asset of a successful pitcher. Speed is still to be desired, but is no longer the dominating factor in a pitcher's success.

Why the change? Charge it to the "rabbit ball" and the short fences. While most of the modern ball parks have a tremendous seating capacity, few have so large a playing field as was the case 15 or 20 years back. Also in those days the ball in use was far less lively.

Most of the crack major league batters of today date on speed. They like nothing better than to face a pitcher who serves a continual diet of fast balls. It is far easier to time the fast ball than any other style delivery. With the lively ball and short fences it doesn't take much of a swing to convert a fast ball into a home run.

I could name a dozen pitchers in the two major leagues who a dozen years back would have rated big stars, yet most of them are finding the game rather dull, as they are. They are pitchers with a great fast ball and a fast curve. Everything

COLLEGE SPIRIT WINS FOR MACK MEN

THEY WORK TOGETHER

AND THE BOYS DON'T LIKE TO STOP PLAYING

BY BILLY EVANS

Andy Smith, famous football coach of the University of California, is as strong for baseball as the gridiron sport.

Recently while umpiring at Philadelphia I bumped into Smith before the game. Andy was merely attending in the role of spectator. Said he was curious to see how the Athletics were winning so many ball games.

A lot of other Philadelphians are just like Smith. They wonder how Mack's club is doing it and they journey out to Shibe Park to get a closeup for themselves. Curious folks have made big business for Connie Mack this year.

The Athletics won the day the famous football mentor was looking them over. Cleveland was beaten in a great game, in which Mack's team came from behind to win. Smith is an analyst, a close student of sport. That is one reason why he has been so successful as a football coach. To him there is a reason for everything.

Have Fighting Spirit
After the game I looked up Andy to get his version of why Connie Mack's young club, almost overlooked at the start of the season, is is lovely when they are getting the fast ball past the batters, but when the opposition starts to time the speed ball they are in trouble. The reason they have nothing in reserve to offer.

A pitcher who depends almost entirely on speed for success is decidedly up against it at present unless he develops a change of pace. A change of pace enables a pitcher to vary his style. If a batsman feels that seven out of every ten balls pitched will be fast ones, he can adopt a stance at the plate that will work to his advantage. A pitcher who has a change of pace can offset this advantage by mixing them up, thereby upsetting the batsman who has his mind set on speed.

A majority of the pitchers who are having great success this year are twirlers who have a varied assortment of stuff, in which the use of the fast ball plays only a very minor part. The knuckle ball, the knutter, the fadeaway and the half speed ball are just a few additions to the old style fast ball and curve.

Rolly Naylor, who is going great for the Athletics, is a shining example of the truth I have expounded. When Naylor came to the Athletics he boasted a great fast ball and a good curve. Yet for a number of years he met with only ordinary success. Naylor worked constantly to increase his stuff. He finally perfected a good change of pace, a slow curve and a half speed ball.

I have seen Naylor win ball games this year in which he didn't throw a dozen fast balls, yet at one time that was his stock in trade. It is nice to have a fast ball that a pitcher can shoot across every now and then to let the batsman know he still has one. Yet to be a big winner, the modern pitcher must have far more than a mere fast ball. As a matter of fact the fast ball these days is more or less used as a threat.

now regarded as the sensation of the American League race.

"The Athletics win because they hustle from the start to the finish. It's a club with the old fighting spirit that doesn't know the meaning of defeat," said Smith.

"Mack's club is the nearest thing to a college team I ever saw. You wouldn't think his club was paid real money to play, rather you would think the players were in it for the fun of playing and the glory of winning."

"Did you notice the good feeling that existed, how each player was constantly encouraging the other. Took me back to the old college stuff to see the athletes pat the fellow on the back who made a good play and say a lot of nice things to him."

"That fellow they call 'Sparkplug' Matthews deserves the title. He's not only a player but a cheer leader as well, for the Athletics. He just bubbles over with enthusiasm that is contagious. It has spread to the rest of the club. That's one big reason why Mack's club has suddenly jumped from a near tailender to a pennant contender."

"The Athletics play as if they wished a ball game consisted of 18 innings instead of nine. Ordinarily most professionals would be perfectly satisfied if the game only required seven innings."

Athletics Have Color
"I am no Connie Mack when it comes to judging ball players, but after looking his team over I wouldn't call it a great club. It's a good club that has no outstanding star like Cobb or Sisler, yet it has the spirit, the desire to win and that makes it a dangerous ball club."

"The Athletics of 1923 have far more color than Mack's old time world champs. There is a dash to the play that Mack's former great teams lacked. Better yet it is a young club that should continue to improve."

"It wouldn't surprise me in the least if Mack gave Philadelphia another world's championship in 1924, positively not later than 1925."

There you have the opinion of one of the greatest football coaches of modern times, as to why the Athletics are starting the baseball world. A man who can turn out great football teams like Smith does is worth while listening to even when he discusses baseball.

Spiking of Riconda by Cobb Stirs Up Old Time Feud With Athletics

By NEA Service
Detroit, July 18.—The old Detroit-Philadelphia baseball feud has been renewed.

After smoldering for a number of years it has been fanned in to flames by the recent spiking of Third Baseman Riconda by Ty Cobb.

Back in the days when the Athletics were winning pennants and world series Cobb, in going to third spiking Frank Baker high on the arm. At another time Jack Barry, in making a play at second, was so badly spiked by Cobb that he was out of the game for a number of weeks.

Recent words of whether there was any intent on the part of Cobb, the Athletics so regarded the incidents and a bitter feeling existed between the clubs.

Philadelphia fans became so heated up over the matter that Cobb was threatened with bodily harm when he appeared in that city. In a number of series Cobb was under police protection in order to avert trouble. While nothing serious ever came of the affair, Cobb spent many unpleasant hours in the Quaker City.

In the recent series between Philadelphia and Detroit Cobb was thrown out at third base. In attempting to avoid the touch he came into the base very high. Riconda, who handled the throw, was cut on the arm.

The story is that Riconda expressed himself very strongly, Cobb, on getting to his feet, brushed against the Athletic third baseman. In so doing he stepped on Riconda's left foot in such a way as to twice out the visiting player. Serious trouble was narrowly averted by the timely interference of players and umpires.

Cobb's actions, whether intentional or merely accidental, have again stirred up the old feud that between the two clubs a hectic struggle. Mack's men openly assert they intend to make trouble. We shall see. A number of players have threatened to get Cobb, but so far their efforts have been confined entirely to conversation.

The fact that Cobb is an outfielder makes him almost immune from injury. An infielder is always in danger, but it is rather hard to make the going unpleasant for an outfielder. If the Athletics are to make trouble for Cobb it looks as if they would be forced to seek a battle ground other than the ball field.

Failure of Rommel to Win Hurts Athletics

By NEA Service
Philadelphia, July 17.—"It Ed Rommel had shown the form this year that he did last season the Athletics would just about be out in front," opined Connie Mack.

"Rommel was the one pitcher on my staff that I banked on at the start, yet he has been the least consistent performer. Naylor, who recently suffered a setback because of a wrenched knee, has supplanted Rommel as my ace for the time being at least. A return to winning form by Rommel is necessary if we are to stay up in the race."

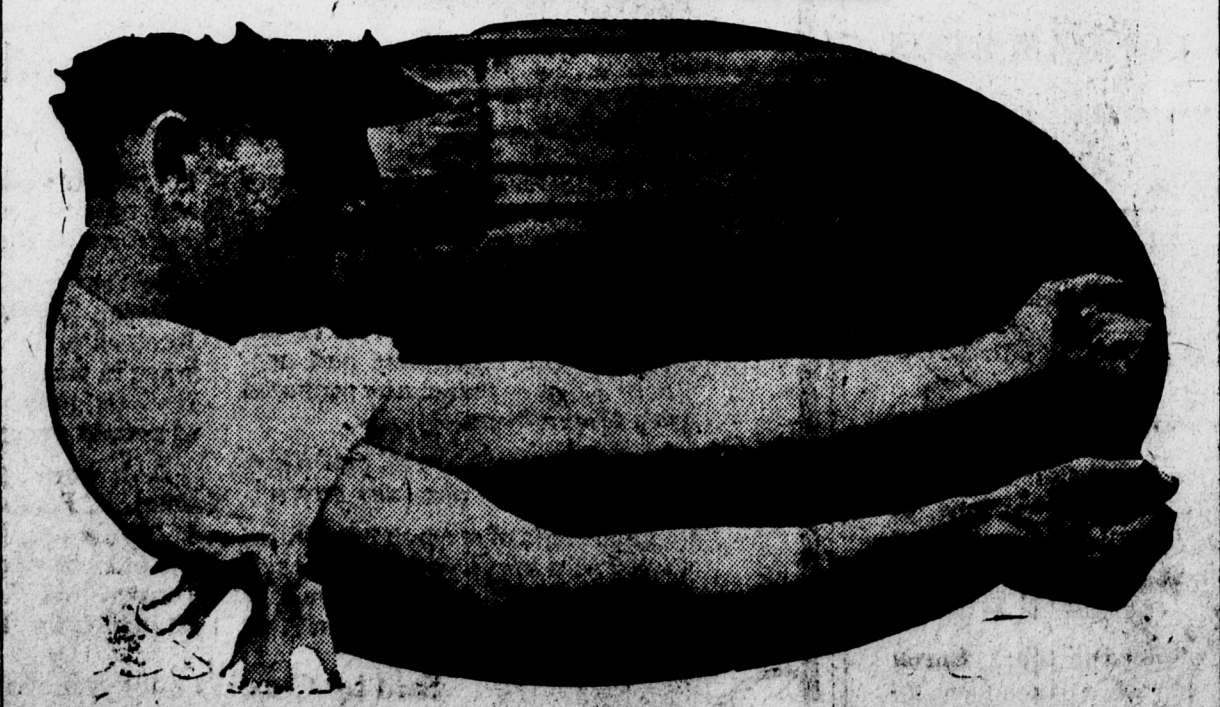

The disappointing showing of Rommel this season is all the more unusual because of the big year he had in 1922. Last year Rommel won 27 games with a seventh place club. The Athletics won only 65 games, so that Rommel was practically 50 per cent of the pitching staff. At one stage of the race he turned in nine straight wins.

Rommel is far from an impressive pitcher to watch. His best bet is a knuckle or finger-nail ball, which seems to stagger through the air on the way to the plate. This delivery is invariably a ball if waited out. His fast ball is hit-table speed.

Some of the experts are inclined to the belief that opposing teams

Curves Sure Curved His Arm

By NEA Service

Baltimore, July 18.—Tommy Gibbons' right arm has a bend in it from "hooking" so much. His reach is shortened two inches as a result.

Harry Frank, a Baltimore Oriole pitcher, has thrown so many curves in the last four years that his right arm is very crooked.

Frank has little speed and relies on curves and a tantalizing slow ball. He is one of the best pitchers in the International League.

"But half a dozen years more and I don't know whether I can get my hand on my chin," says Harry.

are waiting out Rommel this year, and after getting him in the hole, pick on the fast ball cripple when he tries to get it over.

STATE GOLFERS WILL PLAY AT GRAND FORKS

Grand Forks, N. D., July 18.—A large field is expected at the ninth annual golf tournament of the state of North Dakota, at Grand Forks, August 7-11. Entries will be received until August 6 by W. J. Hewitt, Grand Forks, secretary.

The amateur championship competition of the state furnishes the biggest card in the tournament. There also will be a 36-hole match for North Dakota professionals, driving contest, and approaching and putting contest. There also will be team play, the women's championship play. Prizes will be given to the winner and runner-up for the amateur championship and for the best score in the qualifying rounds.

HAZELTON IN 1 TO 0 WIN

Hazleton, July 18.—Hazleton took a 1 to 0 contest from Linton Sunday in the Emmons county league. Score by innings:

Linton ..... 000 000 000—0 2 2
Hazleton ..... 000 000 001—1 3 5
Batteries: Angell, Englerth; Wurm, Armstrong.

2 base hits Junge C. Kalberer. Struck out by Angell 11, by Wurm 9.

Base on balls, by Wurm 1.
Umpires Paulson, Bradberg.

WILL WRESTLE HERE SEPT. 14

Thor Jensen, middleweight wrestler of Bismarck, and Bull Edwards of Sheyenne, Wyo., have been matched for a wrestling bout in Bismarck on September 14. It is planned to give away an automobile to the holder of a luck number and to give net profits to the Disabled War Veterans, Jensen says.

STANTON WINS.
Stanton defeated Carson Sunday in the best exhibition of base ball played in the Missouri Slope League this year. Batteries—Carson: Mortenson and Garland. Stanton: Larson and Seibert.

Kinks The Links

Ball is driven by player from tee and rests in a very bad spot in ground under repair. When the ball is lifted must the player keep the spot from where the ball was lifted between himself and the hole in dropping it?

The player must drop the ball as near as possible to where it lay, but not nearer to the hole.

Player drives the ball out of bounds. It is a particularly long drive and he desires to take advantage of the distance. Is it possible for player to drop the ball on the course opposite to where it lay out of bounds and take a two-stroke penalty in addition to the stroke that resulted in the ball going out of bounds? The desire is to avoid the going back to the tee and playing the shot from there.

The rules specifically state that when a ball goes out of bounds the player must play another shot from as near as possible to where the ball driven out was played, counting the previous stroke and adding another

Mrs. Eugene Criegel doesn't confine her bossing to the family manse. Even in her husband's training she's got plenty to say. And she seconds him in his battles. She'll be at the ropes when the little French feather-weight champion meets Johnny Dundee at the Polo Grounds in New York, July 26.

Jack Reichle Only Rookie But Playing Great Game

By NEA Service.

Boston, July 18.—Speaking of 1923 recruits who have made the grade in the big leagues, don't fail to include Jack Reichle, stellar outfielder of the Boston Red Sox.

For Reichle, a graduate of the University of Illinois, has come through with a vengeance. A heavy hitter, and an exceptionally clever man in a pinch, the former college star has done yeoman service for the Chance entourage in its efforts to keep out of the cellar position.

That he swings a mean stick is shown by the fact that he is massaging the apple around the 375 mark, being right up along with the leaders. But it isn't only at the plate that Reichle stars, for he it known that he is a pretty nifty fielder as well; gets over the territory fast, is a sure shot on fly balls and packs a rifle-like arm.

Reichle comes from the same school that has turned out quite a cluster of major league celebrities, two of the most famous, perhaps, being Garland (Jake) Stahl, old Washington and Boston American League player and manager, and Carl Lundgren, who pitched for the Cubs back in the days when "Peelless" Chance was grabbing pennants and world's championships with reckless abandon.

Unless all predictions prove very wrong, Reichle has a most promising future in the diamond pastime.

stroke as penalty. If the ball driven out of bounds was played from the tee, the player has the right to tee his second ball. If the ball was played from any place other than the tee, he must drop the second ball.

What was Mike Brady's score in winning the western open championship last year and who finished in second place?

JACK REICHEL

The western open was played at the Oakland Hills course, Detroit, Mich., last year. This is Brady's home course, he being the golf pro.

His score was 291. He finished 10 strokes ahead of Jack Hutchinson and Laurie Ayton, who tied for second place.

Puzzling Plays

THE PLAY

Here is an interference play on foul ground caused by one of the players who was waiting for his turn at bat.

The batsman hit a foul fly that came down midway between the bench and the home plate. The first baseman and catcher elected to make a play on the ball. The first baseman kept yelling he would take it and the catcher finally decided to allow him to make the play.

Standing near the home plate was the batsman who had hit the ball. He threw in the direction of his bench two of the bats. One hit the first baseman as he was about to catch the ball, causing him to make a bad muff.

At the time of throwing the bats the batsman had his back to the play and insisted he had no intention of striking the fielder.

What about the play?

THE INTERPRETATION

The fielder always has the right whether on fair or foul territory. While there probably was no intention on the part of the batsman to interfere with the fielder, he so did when his bat came into contact with the first baseman about to make the catch.

The umpire was right in declaring the batsman out, even though the ball was muffed.

BISMARCK AND VALLEY TIE

Valley City, N. D., July 18.—The opening game of the Valley City-Bismarck series in the North Dakota State League here last evening went 10 innings, the game being called on account of darkness with the score standing 2 to 2. Joe Day hit a home run for Bismarck.

The score:
Bismarck ..... 000 002 000 0—2 4 2
Valley City ..... 010 100 000 0—2 5 1
Batteries—Bismarck, Day and Dougan. Valley City, Cantin and Wallin.

MINOT BEATS JAMESTOWN

Jamestown, N. D., July 18.—Buck Enger had hard luck in the first of the Minot-Jamestown series played here yesterday. After pitching shut-out ball for five innings with three errors behind him and two bingles registered, he was pulled in the sixth after two hits and three errors had produced three runs. He was relieved by Wombach, in his first time in the box for Jamestown, and Minot scored four more runs in that inning, three coming in with Spranger's home run.

Fans rose to the support of Jamestown players in the sixth, in protesting decisions of Umpire Lefe Safto, and called for pop bottles. Jamestown finished the game under protest.

Minot ..... 000 007 001—8 8 1
Jamestown ..... 001 102 001—5 9 8
Batteries—Minot, Denison and Oliver. Jamestown, Enger, Wombach and Clark.

How Business Depression Tests Good-Will

Many a manufacturer during the past two years has had an opportunity to measure as never before the real worth of his advertising investment.

He has seen his trade-marked line keep up in sales and his unadvertised goods shrink to a small fraction of their former volume. Innumerable instances could be cited.

Dealers can tell a similar story. The number of makes carried of each item have shrunk to a very few—the best known and most frequently called for. Dealers have changed their point of view; they no longer stock lightly with many brands, but substantially with a few.

Quick turnover is their only salvation in a depression and their real source of profit in a prosperous period.

MARKET NEWS

WHEAT MAKES AN ADVANCE

Chicago, July 18.—Wheat scored a sharp advance in price today during the early dealings, ascending in some cases more than three cents a bushel. The sudden rise was largely due to hurried, active purchasing on the part of previous sellers who were nervous over concerted efforts being made to lift values. Besides there was an evident falling off in volume of rural wheat offered. Opening values which ranged from 3-8 to 13-8 cents higher were followed by advances that took September up to 98-7-8.

Subsequently a slight additional turn took place and there was no important reaction. The close was unsettled, 1½ to 2½ cents not higher, with September 98½ to 98½ and December $1.01½ to $1.01½.

CHICAGO LIVESTOCK

Chicago, July 18.—Hog receipts 31,000. Mostly 15 to 25 cents lower. Top $7.90.
Cattle receipts, 16,000. Very little done on beef steers, yearlings and butcher sheeps. Early top, $11.40. Vendors to packers, $10 to $10.50.
Sheep receipts, 13,000. Very few early sales. Bidding on fat lambs unevenly 25 to 50 cents lower. No westerns sold. A few head choice natives early, $14. Sheep, generally steady. Heavyweight ewes mostly $6.25.

MINNEAPOLIS FLOUR

Minneapolis, July 18.—Flour unchanged at $6.00. Shipments 63,572 barrels. Bran unchanged at $20.00 to $21.00.

ST. PAUL LIVESTOCK

St. Paul, July 18.—Cattle receipts 2,500. Better grades killing cattle, canners, steady; other killing cattle, stockers and feeders weak to 25 cents lower. Grain-fed fat steers and yearlings available $8.50 to $11.00. Grassing steers and yearlings $6.00 to $8.50. Fat cows $3.50 to $7.00. Bologna bulls largely $4.50 to $5.00. Calves receipts 3,200. Steady. Best lights largely $9.00.

Hog receipts 11,200. Choice hogs to shippers $7.10 to $7.25. Steady to 15 cents lower. Bacon and butcher hogs to packers $7.00. Packing sows $5.75 to $6.00. Mostly 25 cents lower. Pigs scarce. Best $6.35.

Sheep receipts 600. Fat lambs mostly 25 cents lower. Culls $13.00. Sheep steady. Choice ewes $16.00.

PROPOSALS FOR FURNISHING LIGNITE COAL TO STATE INSTITUTIONS

Sealed proposals will be received at the office of the Board of Administration of State Institutions in the Capitol Building up to 10 o'clock A. M. July 10, 1923 at Bismarck, North Dakota, for the State Training School at Mandan, Bismarck, Bismarck, Hospital for the Insane at Jamestown, Institution for Feeble Minded at Grafton, School for the Blind at Bathgate, School for the Deaf at Devils Lake, State Capitol Building at Bismarck, Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Dunseith, School of Science at Mandan, Normal and Industrial School at Ellendale, State Teachers College at Valley City, Agricultural College at Fargo, State University at Grand Forks, State Normal School at Minot, State Normal School at Dickinson, and the State Normal School at Dickinson, for furnishing coal for one or more of all institutions named above, ending June 30, 1924. Bids are requested on each grade of coal as designated, and the right is reserved to accept the bid on any of these grades in part or in full.

The coal must be of the best quality for steam or heating purposes and delivered at the institutions named, free from all charges for freight and switching, where there is a switch at the institution; where there is not a switch, the coal must be delivered at the institution in a convenient point for unloading, the location in all cases at which cars are to be placed to be named by the superintendent of the institution.

All coal must be delivered as ordered, in sufficient quantity to supply the wants of the institution, and reserve supply of coal sufficient to meet the requirements of each institution for a period of not less than one month, shall be provided at all times. Railway company's weights at points nearest each institution will govern.

The quantity of coal on which bids are asked may be increased or diminished at the will of the superintendent of the institution, and the Board reserves the right at any time to change the grade of coal by paying the price stated in the bid for the grade used.

Bids for coal are requested for the different grades, the several chief executives of the respective institutions to order the grade desired. Each bidder must specify the mine or mines the coal he proposes to furnish comes from, and must furnish an analysis of every grade of coal on which a bid is submitted; showing per cent of moisture, per cent of volatile matter, per cent of fixed carbon, per cent of sulphur, per cent of ash, per cent of clinkers, and also state its calorific value in B. T. U.

The right is reserved to reject any or all proposals and a sufficient bond will be required from all successful bidders to insure the faithful performance of the contract.

Specifications and quantity of coal will be furnished by this Board on application.

Payment will be made each month by check drawn on the Treasurer of the State for coal furnished for the preceding month.

Approximate amount of coal wanted at each institution is as follows: State Training School at Mandan, 1,200 tons; State Penitentiary at Bismarck, 1,800 tons; State Capitol at Bismarck, 1,800 tons; State Hospital for the Insane at Jamestown, 21,000

TWO NATIONS UNDER ONE FLAG!

For the first time in history British troops marched in an American Independence Day parade, when, at Portland, Ore., recently, British marines from H. M. S. Curlew participated. They are shown here saluting President and Mrs. Harding, who witnessed the history-making event. A special dispensation was granted by the War Department to permit a foreign armed guard to march through an American street. In his speech the president expressed the hope that hereafter representatives of the British navy always would march alongside of American troops in "processions of peace."

CASH FOR GENIUS

MR. AND MRS. JULIUS FORSTMANN AND (INSET) THEIR SON, THE LATE CARL FORSTMANN.

By NEA Service

Passaic, N. J., July 18.—Can cash bring out genius?

Can money stimulate ambition?

Julius Forstmann, wealthy philanthropist, and his wife wanted to find out. So they set aside a fund of $250,000 to assist the youth of the country "to attain to a large measure of self-realization and social usefulness."

And now they are swamped with applicants. So great has the rush become that a special office has been opened with a large corps of workers to handle the claims.

Boys who want to get an education and can't afford it, men who have a pet invention but no money to put it over, visionaries who would rearrange the world, if only they had the chance—are all striving to get their share of the fund.

Back of it is the memory of a boy who died when he was 18. Carl Forstmann was the son of the philanthropist, a millionaire textile manufacturer here, and it is to his memory that the fund has been named the Carl Forstmann Memorial Foundation.

"The fund is not an endowment with only the interest, available," says Forstmann. "It is a working capital, every last cent of which will be used. Neither will it be limited necessarily to $250,000."

"I want to assist boys and young men who are hampered by financial circumstances to attain their ambitions. If they have ability and character I believe I can help them. At the same time I want to perpetuate the influence for intelligence, integrity and industry which would have been my son's had he been permitted to live."

Grants, according to the Forstmann plan, may be either awards or loans. A committee of representative business men and a pastor has been appointed which will expend the money for "education or training of any grade, degree or kind; the prosecution of useful experimentation and research; physical correction and rehabilitation; the realization of any particularly worthy ambition, which, with assistance, offers a strong likelihood of success."

What's Going on in the World

BY CHARLES P. STEWART.
NEA Service Writer.

A diminutive wood-shack, cow-town in the northwest, with 600 inhabitants, aspired to be heard round the world. It was!

Now this little town of Shelby, Mont., 100 miles north of Great Falls, has settled down to its former state of comparative oblivion, trying to recuperate from what is generally considered the greatest fiasco in the history of sports. It was the Dempsey-Gibbons fight, July 4, for the world's heavyweight championship, from which Dempsey came out victor after 15 hard-fought rounds.

Upon evacuation of the town the next day, Shelby began to recount its losses to some $75,000. Shelby's loss is Dempsey's gain, and that of his promoter, Jack Kearns, for these left the west with something like $240,000 in their jeans.

Yet Shelby, like the boastful frog which blew itself up till it burst, had promised Kearns $310,000 before the fight, and could scrape together only two-thirds of the sum.

"Shelby's Folly" this event will be referred to in history. Shelby, retiring into its oil-boom, cow-town shell, is trying to live it down.

LEVIATHAN OFF.

July 4 saw the departure from New York of the United States liner Leviathan, largest steamship afloat, which had been reconditioned by the government for trans-Atlantic service. The ship formerly was the German liner Vaterland, which had been confiscated by the government at the beginning of the war.

Now an argument is proceeding as to whether the German sailors on leaving practiced sabotage on the liner. Former Secretary of Navy Josephus Daniels says they did.

MEDICINAL LIQUOR.

Since Congress gave assent for the use of alcohol for medicinal purposes, its boomerang has come back in the form of a decision by Federal Judge George M. Bourquin, at Helena, Mont., that the physician can no longer be told what quantities he may prescribe.

Judge Bourquin practically declared unconstitutional that part of the Volstead at which seeks to limit for the world. Edward W. Bok of Philadelphia offers the amazing sum of $100,000 to the one who formulates the best and most workable plan by which the United States may cooperate with other nations to achieve and preserve world peace.

GARY PROMISES.

Stirred by public opinion and the words of President Harding, E. H. Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation and American Iron and Steel Institute, announces he will do all in his power to abolish the 12-hour day in the steel industry. It will require at least 60,000 more laborers he says, and will add about 15 per cent to the cost of the finished product.

Churches, welfare organizations and philanthropic societies, that have worked for years to eliminate the long inhuman shift in the steel mills, rejoice at the announcement. They now await its execution, for they think Gary the only man who can do it.

Gary expects to realize the 8-hour day with the aid of colored workers from the south and immigrants now flocking to this country.

THE POPE INTERVENES.

France has greatly resented the pope's intervention into the Ruhr controversy, when he wrote a letter in which he proposed that Germany's ability to pay should be taken as a basis for reparations, and suggested that France might find less "odious" but no less effective guarantees than territorial occupations.

The Vatican denies the pope's letter was prompted by influence from England or Belgium, although there were such charges in the French Chamber of Deputies. However, a somewhat similar letter went to the paper representative at Munich, in which he was commissioned to intervene with the German authorities for the accession of "peaceful resistance" in the Ruhr. Chancellor Cuno complied, to some extent, by depicting recent acts of sabotage in the occupied zone.

GREEK-TURK WAR.

War is actually on between Greece and Turkey, although little is heard of it here. Attempt of the Greeks to land a regiment of troops at Kara-Burun, near the Dardanelles, met with a repulse which resulted in the sinking of a Greek ship and many casualties on both sides.

IMMIGRATION RUSH.

Immigration records swell and burst. The first day of July found 11 liners nosing their way toward Ellis Island. These vessels carried 11,482 passengers of all classes, and crews of 4,100 men. That meant 15,582 had to be examined by inspectors. It was nearly double the number arriving on the same day a year ago. The law allowing a monthly admission of 3 per cent of the nationals already in the country, caused the rush on the first of the month. About 80 per cent of the arrivals were admitted.
